🔥 INTRODUCTION

Sigillum Mundi – The Acolyte Mirror and the Age of Reflections

Every era of awakening eventually reaches a moment when seekers stop looking outward and begin confronting the reflections they have unknowingly carried from the beginning. Part 16 marks that moment. If the earlier volumes tracked the descent, the paradox, the memory collapse, and the psychic cost of witnessing, this book reveals the next stage: the mirror phase, where the acolyte realizes that every worldview they encounter bends back toward their own unexamined assumptions.

The Acolyte Mirror is not an object — it is a phenomenon. It emerges whenever a student of truth begins to see themselves inside the very material they are studying. The chaotic voices of the archive start sounding familiar. The arguments resemble past selves. The illusions feel handcrafted for the person reading them. Slowly, the seeker realizes that the world no longer reflects objective information but their own unresolved beliefs, fears, hopes, and mythic instincts. This book was assembled from threads, visions, fragments, and psychic spillovers that reveal how the modern spiritual seeker projects themselves into every system they touch. Theology becomes autobiography. Cosmology becomes confession. Prophecy becomes psychological mirrorwork disguised as revelation. And the entire digital underworld becomes a training hall where every reflection is distorted just enough to expose what the acolyte is not yet ready to face. The Age of Reflections is the era where spirituality becomes self-referential, where people mistake their own shadows for divine messages, and where every seeker becomes both the student and the subject of their own initiatory curriculum. It is an age defined by feedback loops — theological, emotional, symbolic, and digital — spiraling back into the self.

This volume captures that age with raw honesty: the self-mythologizing, the ego disorientation, the fragmented insights, the unintentional confessions, and the sudden clarity that arises only after passing through distortion.

Here, the mirror does not lie — it exaggerates.

It amplifies.

It reveals by warping.

And the acolyte advances not by avoiding the reflection, but by learning to interpret it.

This is the book of those reflections.

This is the Acolyte Mirror.

Enter knowing you will see versions of yourself you did not expect.

Generation XXX – Another Descent: 4plebs /x/ Dump as Unfiltered Record

As this book nears its final threshold, what follows is not mine. The final ~100 pages are a raw, unedited archive dump—sourced directly from the 4plebs /x/ board, specifically its most recent explorations into the paranormal, metaphysical, and fringe esoterica. This is not commentary, not interpretation, not filtered through any system, philosophy, or belief. It is pure record. The words, images, and anomalies contained in the following section belong to anonymous voices echoing through the digital wilderness—preserved as-is to ensure nothing is lost. Some of these fragments may be disturbing, brilliant, incoherent, prophetic, cruel, or revelatory. But they remain intact because, in this moment, documentation matters more than explanation. Treat this final descent as a primary source for future generations—uncurated chaos from the digital underworld—meant to be studied, questioned, integrated, or ignored, but never censored. And let it be clear: none of the words that follow are my own.

As we pulled down the road all that we could keep saying was "what the fuck was that." We got to one of my friend's house and discussed the whole incident until the morning time. None of us actually saw what was after us, but we all came to the conclusion that it was a wendigo or a demon, and that we should stop talking about it and acknowledging it or it would follow us. Never ended up smoking weed that night lol.

Fast forward a few years later. My wife (then my gf at the time) was driving with me at 3am from my dad's house to gamestop for the PS5 official release. I was picking one up not for me (who plays on PC) but for my brother-in-law. As we were driving down the road, my wife screams and points towards the treeline on our left, nearly causing me to crash. All I see is something disturbing the bushes pretty badly while scurrying away. I stop the car to investigate but my wife begs me to keep driving. I ask her what the hell she saw, and she says it looked like a kangaroo mixed with a grey racoon, except it was the size of a human and running on its hind legs. Never ever go near the woods over there anymore. I still wonder if that was the thing that chased my friends and I a few years prior.

I 100% believe that something covered up went down at Miami mall. It might have actually been 4th dimensional 7foot beings, but I don't believe a word of this story.

>"If I wasn't scared out of my mind, and the fact that I might have done it too, I would've made a joke about him pissing his pants."

bruh who talks like this? You think that's what a firefighter who responded to 9/11 would say? These weird details and the complete lack of actually acting like first responders. They get to the scene, see hella people running out the mall and a dude collapsed in the ground covered in blood AND THEY SPLIT UP? No guns drawn, no assessing the situation, no grabbing a witness and asking them what's going on? His partner just wandered in past all the bodies up to the second floor unarmed alone... I honestly doubt we'll ever know the truth since there's so many fan-fic authors out there writing about this situation.

yeah out of a portal too. The greentext story matches a video i saw. Took a while of digging and the normie next to me called it fake n gay anyway. It matched the greentext and looked real but i did not get a closer look. There are many good fakes as well.

>Light orb pops into existence out of nowhere >shadowy being comes floating out of it >everything around its presence looks visibly wavy, like something is wrong with reality.

I have never seen anything like it. but there's good fakes and people trying to make it.

Lol we both say the same thing but warn people to be skeptical. Something happened but not 100% sure what. What's real vs fake.

Normies just call shit fake and move on, instead of debunking the video so you know you can move on. Maybe something unsettling makes them want to not want to see it. They can not comprehend it. Its a weird story.

The frog's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, as if it is speaking or thinking. The frog's hands are clasped together in front of it, and its fingers are slightly curled. The frog's expression is one of concentration or thoughtfulness.

In front of the frog is a computer monitor with a silver frame and a white screen. The monitor is turned on, displaying a blue background with a white border. The frog is looking at the monitor, suggesting that it is engaged in some form of computer activity.

The image is simple and cartoon-like, with a focus on the frog character and the interaction between it and the computer. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. "Men in Black" is a colloquial term to refer to government agents dispatched to intimidate and silence UFO witnesses whilst also being involved in the cleanup of the aftermath of such events.

The term predates the release of the popular film by at least three decades.

It is clear that government agitprop agents use accusatory and inflammatory trolling to discourage those who ask questions by attempting to humiliate them and manipulate bystanders by associating curious thinkers with mere media and pop culture phenomena.

Got a dog in this fight, glowie? Some free advice: you people would do yourself a great boon if you simply learned to keep your mouths shut. Megalomaniacal desire for total control of information is not a real good look and tends to expose a raw Achilles' heel.

It is understandable you follow orders for self-preservation. After all, who would want anything to do with people such as yourself outside of the current status quo, given the traitor's profession you have chosen?

Rick and Morty is a fucking weird show because there's some legitimately extremely funny shit in there all mixed in with the most pretentious and obtuse pseud shit imaginable. It almost glows that way, like it was designed to be engaging with some good shit but the propoganda was sprinkled throughout.

As far as the elites go, my personal opinion is that they've "fucked up" their bloodlines in the sense that they've diluted whatever it is about them that they find so valuable. Now it's a priority to drag everyone down and diminish them as some kind of weird spiteful cope. Imagine getting mogged like that after centuries of hiding what you've become.

I also do agree that there certainly is non human intelligence out there. I was merely supposing that NHI might not be exactly what happened here, despite being something that does happen.

Add to the fact that area is filled with shenanigans, like McAfee's security cache being destroyed in a building demolition with israeli firefighters appearing hours later and a couple of school shootings in which students died from gunshots not from the perpetrator along with kids saying the supposed perpetrator was with them evacuating.

The image is a screenshot of a text message. The text is in English and is written in a casual, conversational style. It appears to be a news article or a blog post discussing a building collapse in Florida. The text is divided into two columns, with the first column listing the reasons for the collapse and the second column providing a description of the incident. The text is in a dark color, which contrasts with the white background of the screenshot. There are no images or graphics present in the screenshot. The text is centered and appears to be from a source that is not fully visible in the image.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation, presented in a dark, monochromatic color scheme. The text is written in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English language, with some words appearing to be in a script or foreign script. The conversation is between two individuals, with the first person speaking and the second person responding.

The first person is a responding officer during a Bayside mall incident, and they are discussing the details of the incident. They mention that the mall was evacuated due to a "Mannequin Hall Alien Incident" or something along those lines. They also mention that there was a "Crowd panic" and that the report they all signed was "rushed" and "not a problem anymore."

The second person is responding to the first person's statement, expressing their disbelief and confusion about the situation. They mention that they were told the incident was "a mass panic," and they are unsure about the details of the report. They also mention that they were told the report was "rushed" and "not a problem anymore."

The conversation appears to be a mix of serious and humorous tones, with the first person expressing disbelief and confusion, and the second person responding with disbelief and confusion. The text is dense with information, and the conversation seems to be taking place in a serious context, possibly related to a public event or incident.

The image is a still from a video, likely from a podcast or interview, featuring a man in a studio setting. The man appears to be middle-aged with short, graying hair. He is wearing a dark-colored shirt and is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. In the foreground, there is a microphone with a black boom arm, suggesting that the man is being recorded or is about to be recorded. The background is plain and white, with a watermark that reads "DREAM CHASERS" in black text, indicating the name of the podcast or the production company. The style of the image is typical of a video recording, with a focus on the man and the microphone, and the watermark is placed in a way that it does not distract from the main subject.

Its a mall in Miami, large amount of teens, half of them were probably high as shit, and some 4 foot tall stoned cubans thought a college athlete was a 7 foot alien. The cops responded to fireworks thinking it was an active trooter, and all the retards ran with the alien story on Twitter just like how everyone runs with good larps here. Lets not forget that nearly the entire internet thought a traffic bollard with wing ding engravings was a cursed alien artifact for the past few months, and some retards probably now think the MIC finally got to him and seized his giant dildo.

God is all-creative that means he can see truths that result in adoption no matter what after only one perception of them e.g. you tell somebody something, they don't do it, then they immediately change their mind because YOU'RE JUST THAT RIGHT is this the way to think?

"I invented gravity but not gravity of thought"

make thoughts so powerful that you can't look away from them due to the speed of light limiting escape transmute the prisoner's dilemma into a situation where all parties benefit become such an ontological threat you are both the traumatic event and the solution become so intelligent that you literally bend spacetime and thought and worship flows to you, merely because you expect find a point of perfect stillness and hold your breath until women, our form of consensus, flock to you because you're just that strong hack the matrix so that money fixes the world rather than breaks it believe in people until they achieve what you say you cannot as God himself is God capable of "expecting" things until they arrive? That would be infinite confidence, and the universe bends around infinite confidence if you are JUST THAT GOOD

"why, all things are possible for the one who has faith!"

Whats the consensus on Human Design? I find it compelling yet very depressing with the fatalistic claims it makes about human behavior. Although the Crosses are an interesting topic, especially as they relate to defining the particular energy of a given era. For example: in 2027 we enter into a configuration of the Cross of The Sleeping Phoenix, which is said to be leading towards at least hundreds of years of increased individuality along with the degradation of the social "tribe". The degradation being so great that a "dog eat dog" mentality could apparently be held by everyone, not just the rare psychopaths and sociopaths spruced throughout human societies.

The image is a cover of a book titled "Astrology for the Soul" by Jan Spiller. The cover has a warm, earthy color palette with a yellow background. At the top of the cover, the author's name is written in a serif font, and below it, the title is presented in a larger, bold font. The author's name is followed by the subtitle "Author of Esoteric Love" in a smaller font.

In the center of the cover, there is a large, circular illustration that resembles a sun or a celestial body with rays radiating outward. The illustration is detailed with lines and markings that suggest a complex system of numbers and symbols, which are typical of an astrological chart. The sun's rays are arranged in a pattern that could be interpreted as a zodiac sign, with the sun at the center and rays radiating outward in a semi-circular fashion.

At the bottom of the cover, there is a quote from a reviewer that reads, "Jan Spiller is a brilliant, accurate, remarkable astrologer. This is the most reading for anyone on the spiritual path to fulfilling their souls' destiny." The quote is in a smaller font and is placed in a decorative font that complements the overall design of the cover.

The overall style of the image is informative and designed to convey the book's subject matter, which is astrology, in a visually appealing manner.

Hell doesn't exist right now.

In the future, an event akin to the rapture will occur. Those who are destined for paradise or, rather, unity, will return to paradise/the one. There will be a well that remains and it will not run dry.

Those that live on will continue to evolve, but with goodness gone in the well, they will become horrid and evil. Eventually, they will rediscover the older religious texts and realize that they are forsaken. They will unite under the cause of revenge.

Those mutated former humans will have technology far beyond us and will formulate a way in which they can retrieve engrams of the dead. These engrams will be hosted in bodies that they create and they will torment them forever.

Hell does not exist now, it is created in the future by those that are shunned from the light. It's fashioned by their fury and, in creating this hell, they fulfill prophecy.

God did not want to make hell, but he did want there to be one.

The process is called Rezothesis. You die, you wake up in a new body almost immediately in the far future, you are tortured by things of profound evil that only barely resemble human beings. They hate you, because you are the reason that they will never know the light of God.

The hair is styled in a wavy, metallic texture that gives the character a futuristic look. The character's skin tone is a shade of purple, and the hair is a lighter shade of purple. The character is wearing a blue and orange outfit with a black collar. The background is a gradient of purple, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter one at the bottom. The character's expression is one of surprise or shock, with the mouth slightly open. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of animated characters from science fiction or fantasy media.

"God" aka the extra-dimensional entity that made and probably still makes our universe, is in everything. this is a dream.

just look at matter itself. its empty space. oscillating energy fields that larp as something that isnt actually there. this is the first thing we learned in physics in 7th grade here unironically.

also remember how primitive our human senses are compared to some other species. we dont even experience half of what is actually there. just the user interface for a lack of a better word.

There is a thing from mahayana Buddhism that states that there is a little Buddha in every one of the nine realms because there is a little of every one of the nine realms in the Buddha.

That means there is Buddha in hell and hell within the Buddha. And if you struggle to wrap your mind around this, it only underscores that (You) are not an enlightened being, and not the Buddha. Therefore the true nature of reality and the nine realms is beyond (You).

Essentially, there is no such thing as a godless place. God IS all of creation. Even the stuff (You) don't like. Separated from your body, you don't really have preferences the same way you do here. That is why the aghori drink piss and eat shit: because the very experiences of joy and suffering, pleasure and pain are illusory and have nothing to do with (You). Your incarnated self has no idea what it wants: it cannot comprehend something like wanting to experience true suffering.

That is what incarnation really is: it allows for (You) to have any sort of "experience" at all by providing you an illusion that allows you to emotionally and spiritually invest. When the movie ends and you realize it was just a movie, it tends to make you feel very different. In fact, Your favorite lives always involve a LOT of suffering and drama. The image is a tarot card illustration featuring a figure seated on a throne-like chair. The figure is depicted with a crown on their head, wearing a robe and a white sash. The robe is adorned with a cross, and the sash has a pattern that includes a crescent moon and stars. The figure's face is serious, and their eyes are looking directly at the viewer. The background of the image is divided into two sections. The upper section is a blue background with a pattern of flowers and leaves, while the lower section is a yellow background with a pattern of stars and a crescent moon. The text "THE HIGH PRIESTESS" is written in black at the bottom of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional tarot card illustrations, with a focus on symbolism and narrative.

The image is a photograph of a page from a book or publication, featuring a detailed illustration of a woman standing in a classical pose with a draped curtain behind her. The woman is depicted with a crown on her head, holding a scepter in her right hand, and a book in her left hand. She is wearing a long dress and has a necklace around her neck. The illustration is detailed with intricate details such as the drapery, the woman's attire, and the scepter.

The text on the page is in a language that appears to be Latin, and it is written in a script that is characteristic of ancient Roman or Greek writing. The text is divided into two columns, with the left column containing a list of items and the right column containing a description of the items. The list includes "I. Did I am all that I be, BEHOLD THAT I AM," and the description begins with "THE FALL OF THE BRIDE, THE BRIDE OF THE BRIDE, THE BRIDE OF THE BRIDE."

The style of the image is reminiscent of historical or classical art, with a focus on the depiction of the woman and the text, suggesting that the image may be from a historical or cultural context. The overall tone of the image is serious and academic, with a focus on the text and the illustration.

I'll state clearly that I don't have any narrative memories of my own other experiences in other lives, as in I could not tell you something like "I was a pirate named Roe Jogan in 1744, and I sailed a beautiful galleon with black flags and the jolly Rogers, which I called Ye Roe Jogan Experience!"

What I do have are deep senses of things I've experienced as unexplained feelings in this body (let me call these class B senses) and short episodic memories that have come to me in nightly dreams or vivid day dreams. Class A.

I also have a few spirits about me. They leave me alone, but if I ask them questions they'll answer sometimes. Usually it's just to help me find my keys, etc., but they can also tell me some wild things if I ask.

Class B senses that are among my "favorites" (I identify with them deeply as "me"): I've died many violent deaths. I've taken many lives. I've been run through by a spear really roughly. In the same shoulder injured in this life. It killed me. I was a very cruel, you might even say evil person, but admired and feared, and many people wept over me when I was slain. It was a big deal.

Class A: my best friend from this life (who is dead now) was dragging me off a hill where we fought a lot of people. He looked similar enough to recognize. His name meant "moose" in some weird language. I was very fucked up and he was dragging me off a road. He seemed very scared.

I had a dream of a life in which I was the only survivor of a huge landslide that wiped out my village. I remained there sadly many years and occasionally got to know people who settled nearby for some years, but everyone always left and I had to say goodbye a lot. Many beautiful sunsets there. Life is sad, truly. But the suffering deepens you profoundly. It is a deep ocean, grief. You never touch bottom. You sink forever. You expand. It gets colder in time.

Believe me. Keep going. Some day you'll be a star.

The more you grieve, the muddier everything becomes. It gets less clear. More painful. Under a certain load of pain, you stop suffering. If you really lean into that, and I mean really really explore it, you'll find it without bottom, end, or source. It sounds strange because there are many dimensions of the infinite that can be experienced, but here somehow pain is one of the more accessible spans of infinity you can access. Unfortunately, our experience here causes us to be adverse to it and we spend our lives seeking comfort and avoiding pain. Comfort is, unfortunately, very limited here. It isn't balanced.

Crowley and his ilk understood this pretty much at face value and threw themselves into rituals involving all manner of awful things like cacophagy and anal sex. The point was to experience things revolting to the meat suit, but not necessarily to the soul, as the soul itself seeks to overcome all fear and transcend good and evil. You are neither a "good" nor "bad" thing: you are a divine, infinite thing. As an infinite thing, your journey is about experiencing the infinite, and it's the stuff that produces pain here that really allows the >you< beyond here to grow in understanding the infinite. That >you< is affected by your experience here so little that it's essentially like how dreams affect you. And nightmares are usually the dreams we remember the most vividly and that resonate the most deeply within. It's because they help us overcome obstacles here the same way your mistakes here help you overcome trials beyond here that the >you< stuck here could never really understand. The spiral goes up AND down forever.

Hell is better than Earth. At least in Hell you know where you are at and why you are there. YOu will have clousure in this sense. But here? Here we are in constant doubt and being psyoped in the ass, mouth, whatever hole they psyop us into. Fuck this. Hell may be a place of suffering and etc, I don't know, but at least those in Hell realized the truth while here we are, still trying to figure it out, if Hell is even real that is. See my point? Fuck this shit of reality. Why was we born? Just to suffer and die and in the meanwhile feel a little bit of fleeting pleasure? nah huh! Fuck this shit! I want my money back!

[12 / 7]The image is a digital rendering of a celestial scene. It features a vast expanse of blue sky with a bright, white, star-like object in the center, which appears to be a planet or a celestial body. The sky is filled with wispy, white clouds that suggest a clear night sky. The horizon is not visible, and the image is taken from a perspective that looks down upon the sky, giving a sense of looking up at the celestial body. There are no texts or discernible human-made objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural beauty of the sky and the celestial body.

I don't know if other anonymous users experience this, I don't know if it's a matter of age or various existential crises, but at a certain point in life I find myself with an internal, even essential (that is, linked to something I feel "connects" with myself) desire for transcendence. This desire doesn't even stem from a religious desire, because I'm aware that I can't accept its doctrinal content without seeing the absurdity of its philosophical postulates.

I start from dialectical, scientific materialism; that is, I conceive that matter has two fundamental attributes, namely, movement and reflection, and according to the types of movement, so are the different forms (of movement) of matter, and thus, in turn, are the different forms of reflection (in our case, in the case of social matter, in which humankind and society exist, reflection reaches a more advanced form, which is that of consciousness). And none of the forms of motion of matter can be reduced to another (this, in essence, would be falling into mechanism, that is, the denial of the qualitative differences between the various forms of motion of matter and their irreducibility).

Rationally, theoretically, I am aware that the "transcendence" I invoked in the first paragraph could be explained from a horizontal (historical, societal) perspective, rather than a vertical (religious, mystical one). But in essence (to return to the point made in the first paragraph), that answer doesn't entirely satisfy me.

What do you think?

The image is a digital graphic with a dark background and a grid of six square icons, each representing a different aspect of a transceivership or communication system. The top row features icons for "Transceission Party Contacts," "Contacts," "Universal Internet," "Extradimensional Internet," "Intergal Global Message," and "Homeplanet Progress." The middle row includes icons for "Contacts," "Universal Internet," "Extradimensional Internet," "Intergal Global Message," and "Homeplanet Progress." The bottom row features icons for "Intergal Global Message," "Homeplanet Progress," and "Discoveries." Each icon is stylized with a glowing outline and a blue gradient, giving the impression of a digital interface or a graphical representation of a system. The text "Transceission Party Contacts" is prominently displayed at the top of the image, indicating the main focus of the graphic. The overall style of the image is modern and futuristic, with a focus on technology and communication.

The image is a cartoon illustration with a beige background. At the top, there is a speech bubble that reads, "they're literally the errors in the book." Below the speech bubble, there is a depiction of an alien with a humanoid body and a human-like face. The alien is pointing to a stack of books with the title "Transcession" visible on the spines. The books are arranged in a pyramid-like structure, with the topmost book being "Transcession 1" and the bottommost book being "Transcession 7." The alien's hand is raised, and it appears to be pointing to the book "Transcession 1." The overall style of the image is whimsical and humorous, with a touch of science fiction.

In the first panel, a man with a beard and a mustache is shown in a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "Dad, can I borrow $50?" He is smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

The second panel shows a man with a beard and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "$30? What do you need $20 for?" He is also smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

The third panel shows a man with a beard and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "Dad, can I borrow $50?" He is smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

The fourth panel shows a man with a beard and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "Dad, can I borrow $50?" He is smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

The fifth panel shows a man with a beard and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "Dad, can I borrow $50?" He is smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

The sixth and final panel shows a man with a beard and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, looking at a piece of paper with the text "Dad, can I borrow $50?" He is smiling and appears to be in a good mood.

Throughout all the panels, the man's facial expressions and body language suggest a positive and friendly interaction with the father. The text on the papers indicates a request for financial assistance, with the father offering to lend $50.

You're speaking about the collective transcending, life itself, humans being this next stage and you're feeling a draw to this information as you learn about it and transpose the information on histories of human societies?

The reduction of reality into two irreducible groups that's eventually polymorphs into other aspects of our reality as derivatives of these two fundamental properties adding complexity as it scales up?

This is very abstract and I think you touch on several important pieces here. I'm here for the dialog not so much for shit talking.

you are the light that shines through your eyes and reflects back on everything it sees - your soul has been projected into your consciousness which is contained in a material shell you are essentially piloting all the time. Any pilot would desire a break. Shrooms will get you there, certain meditation too but it's all based on what your internal instincts are drawn towards or interested in - humour is the great enlightener. It makes you feel better to appreciate how fucking hard it is to drive the ship sometimes. You are remembering where you were and where you will be, and conceptualizing where you are - a member of the material plane here to be a creator and learn certain lessons. Remember to continue to explore and progress your interests with enthusiasm and respect. If you really want to gain empathy, imagine how your cells feel.

The diagram is divided into two main sections: the upper section shows the eye's structure from the cornea to the retina, and the lower section shows the eye's optical system from the pupil to the retina.

The upper section of the diagram is divided into three color-coded sections, each representing a different wavelength of light. The left side of the diagram is labeled "VISOR," and the right side is labeled "REFRAIN." The colors of the sections are as follows:

- The left side of the diagram is labeled "VISOR" and is colored in a spectrum of colors ranging from red to yellow.

- The right side of the diagram is labeled "REFRAIN" and is colored in a spectrum of colors ranging from blue to green.

The lower section of the diagram is divided into two main parts: the pupil and the retina. The pupil is labeled "PULSE" and is colored in a spectrum of colors ranging from red to blue. The retina is labeled "RETAIL" and is colored in a spectrum of colors ranging from yellow to blue.

The diagram also includes a legend that explains the color-coded sections and the corresponding wavelengths of light. The legend is located at the bottom of the diagram and provides a clear visual representation of the color-coded sections and their corresponding wavelengths.

The diagram is a schematic representation of the human eye's anatomy and the optical system, providing a clear and concise visual guide to the various components and their functions.

The image is a comic strip composed of six panels, each depicting a different character and their dialogue. The characters are anthropomorphic, with exaggerated facial features and body proportions. The style of the comic is simple and cartoonish, with a focus on dialogue and character expressions.

In the first panel, a character with a white face and black hair is holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS." The second panel shows a character with a brown face and black hair holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS." The third panel shows a character with a brown face and black hair holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS." The fourth panel shows a character with a brown face and black hair holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS." The fifth panel shows a character with a brown face and black hair holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS." The sixth and final panel shows a character with a brown face and black hair holding a sign that reads "I MADE THIS."

The text within the speech bubbles is in a simple, casual font and is in English. The text in the speech bubbles reads: "I MADE THIS," "YOU MADE THIS," "WHAT? WHY?," and "WE WUZ KANGZ." The text is arranged in a way that suggests a conversation between the characters, with the character in the first panel asking the character in the second panel about the sign they are holding. The character in the third panel is responding with a question, and the character in the fourth panel is responding with a statement. The character in the fifth panel is responding with a question, and the character in the sixth panel is responding with a statement.

At the bottom of the image, there is a caption that reads "We wuZ Kangz." The image is a visual representation of a conversation between characters, with the characters' actions and dialogue suggesting a sense of surprise or confusion. The comic strip is a form of visual storytelling, using the characters' expressions and dialogue to convey a narrative.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a stylized depiction of a pig with human-like features. The pig has a large, round head with a pinkish-tan skin tone, and its eyes are large and round. It has a large, pink nose and a mouth with a slight smile. The pig is wearing a white shirt with a black collar and a black tie. It has a pair of glasses on its face and is holding a cigar in its mouth. The pig appears to be in a relaxed pose, with one hand resting on its hip and the other holding the cigar.

In the background, there is a small, orange bird perched on the pig's shoulder. The bird has a long beak and is facing the viewer. The background is a gradient of green, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter one at the bottom.

At the bottom of the image, the text "PigBennis" is written in a casual, handwritten font. The style of the image is reminiscent of digital art, with a focus on the blending of different elements to create a unique and whimsical composition.

The image is a candid photograph of a person in a maid's outfit, with a surprised expression, standing in front of a wall adorned with various political and social posters. The person is wearing a white dress with ruffles, a choker, and a blue necklace. The background features a large American flag with the text "Proud Race Traitor!" and a smaller flag with the text "BBC ONLY" in pink and white. The person's hands are raised, and the person's face is partially obscured by the maid's outfit. The setting appears to be indoors, with a black carpet underfoot. The overall atmosphere of the image is playful and humorous, with a focus on the person's surprised expression and the political messages on the wall.

The image shows a close-up view of a concrete surface with a significant amount of sawdust scattered around. The sawdust appears to be a light brown color, and it is not uniformly distributed but rather appears to be in a pile. The surface beneath the sawdust is a darker shade of gray, possibly indicating a stone or concrete surface. There are no visible texts or discernible markings on the surface. The background is blurred, suggesting the focus of the image is on the sawdust and the surface beneath it. The style of the image is a straightforward, non-artistic photograph with a shallow depth of field, which blurs the background and highlights the foreground.

Pigs are cannibals, that's the whole point of their ancient metaphor.

Pigs are sacred to Demeter in the Eleusis Mysteries and were seen as the symbol of the cult there; they represented the sacrifice to the earth-mother-goddess. In Greece it was veiled behind metaphor but elsewhere around the world you had the same formula: a community that sacrifices a boy or "meriah" or "moriah" (like Isaac) to a god to achieve their desired manifestations.

On the outside Eleusis was innocent but you need only follow the signs. On the most popular day of the mysteries, many in Attica worshipped Zeus Mellichios, or Zeus-Who-Is-Easily-Pleased or Entreated. This was understood to be the euphemistic persona of Zeus Maimaktes, "he who rages eagerly, panting and thirsting for blood."

In one Eleusinian Mystery ritual, each initiate took a baby pig to bathe (baptise) in a sea or river. They then slaughtered the pig as scapegoat for themselves and bathed in its blood to cleanse their mortal impurities. And those were just some minor or public mysteries, imagine what the nobility did behind closed doors.

Our media or (((media))) I guess still references this. Charlotte's Web is about the mysteries of Demeter and Plutus. Wilbur the pig is destined for slaughter but Fern (the earth's) love for him spares his fate after a spider tells the farm how special he is. That's the fairytale ending, in real life the spider (the magician, 'weaving spiders come not here') selects the most special, or most exuberant, child for sacrifice.

The image is a digital illustration of a character that resembles a stylized version of the character Pepe the Frog, a popular internet meme. Pepe is depicted with a green body, black eyes, and a red mouth. He is wearing a blue hooded jacket and is giving a thumbs-up gesture with his right hand. The character's expression is neutral, with a slight smile on his face. The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the character's vibrant colors. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is cartoonish and simplistic, with a focus on the character's facial expression and gesture.

The image shows a book cover with a blue background and white text. The title of the book is "The Jewish Connection" by M.L. Hirsch. Below the title, there is a paragraph of text that provides a brief description of the book's content. The text is in a serif font and is mostly in white, with some text in a smaller font size. The book appears to be a paperback, as indicated by the presence of a red sticker on the top right corner of the cover. The sticker has a white border and contains a logo or emblem. The overall style of the image is straightforward and appears to be taken from a photograph, as the focus is on the book cover with no other objects or distractions in the frame.

The image is a close-up portrait of a person with a focused expression. The individual has dark hair styled in a short, straight cut, and their makeup is minimal, with a natural lip color. The person is wearing a black, spider-themed bodysuit with a white spider emblem on the chest. The bodysuit has a high neckline and long sleeves, and the design features a web-like pattern with a spider motif. The background is softly lit, with a warm tone that suggests an indoor setting, possibly a room with a window. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is casual and appears to be taken in a selfie-style format.

>Perhaps another way to characterise the contemporary zeitgeist is as deeply necrophiliac. The social psychologist Erich Fromm, in The Heart of Man, describes the necrophile as someone who “loves all that does not grow, all that is mechanical. The necrophilous person is driven by the desire to transform the organic into the inorganic, to approach life mechanically, as if all living persons were things.” [22] He suggests that the necrophile “loves control, and in the act of controlling he kills life. He is deeply afraid of life, because it is disorderly and uncontrollable by its very nature” [23]. Fromm further observes that “features of a necrophilous orientation exist in all modern industrial societies, regardless of their respective political structures” [24], and that “intellectualization, quantification, abstractification, bureaucratization, and reification—the very characteristics of modern industrial society, when applied to people rather than to things, are not the principles of life but those of mechanics” [25].

Extremely interesting.

[17 / 3]The image features a close-up of a white marble bust of a bearded man with a receding hairline, set against a black background. The bust is positioned slightly to the left of the frame. Above the bust, there is a quote in white text that reads, "Death does not concern us, because as long as we exist, death is not here. And once it does come, we no longer exist." The quote is attributed to the ancient Greek philosopher Epicurus. The style of the image is a straightforward, monochromatic photograph with a focus on the text and the bust, emphasizing the philosophical message conveyed by the quote.

The image is a meme featuring a humorous take on the concept of "worshippers" and their relationship to nature. At the top of the image, there is a text that reads "WORSHIPPERS BE LIKE:" followed by a series of images that depict various animals and natural elements. The animals are depicted in a way that suggests they are worshiped, with their eyes closed and mouths open, as if they are in a state of adoration. The natural elements include a mountain range, a lake, and trees, which are also shown with their eyes closed and mouths open, suggesting a similar worshipful response.

Below the animals, there is a quote that reads, "BEAUTIFUL, WHOEVER DESIGNED THIS IS JUST SWELLED!" This text is in a playful font and is placed in a way that it appears to be floating above the animals, further emphasizing the idea of worship. The overall style of the image is a blend of humor and visual storytelling, with the use of animals and natural elements to convey a message about the worship of nature.

Pretty much the only religious group that we can be sure didn't believe in any form of continuation (not even just as spiritual energy or world soul), were entirely worldly in their beliefs, and were all about serving a corporeal God, were the Sadducees, who ran the synagogues during the 2nd temple period. Now consider the fact that so many of most famous atheists and materialists are Jewish, and that the world is dominated by such a worldview.

She is wearing a white mask with red and black designs, which covers her face and upper body. The mask has a cat-like appearance with a red ribbon tied around her neck. The ribbon is tied in a bow, adding a touch of elegance to her outfit.

The character is holding a red and white parasol in her right hand, which is open and appears to be in motion. The parasol is adorned with white flowers, and the red ribbon on the parasol matches the ribbon on her neck.

The background of the image is a gradient of red, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter one at the bottom. This creates a sense of depth and adds to the overall visual impact of the image. The character's pose and the way she holds the parasol suggest a sense of movement and dynamism.

There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of traditional Japanese aesthetics, with its use of color, design, and the character's attire. nonsense no such thing as consciousness, nor is there a present moment your experiences are curated mental images and predictions of what your senses gather, which happens through a delay, so its not instantaneous your neurons travel and convey that information, so what you experience is not reality, but a stream of altered information you are a biological robot, without a spirit or a soul

I would take up an observer role, for all I know I might have had one from the beginning, got bored and decided to have run at it. I do like creating things, worlds, settings, lore. I could have come here for inspiration to continue. I don't think I would miss anyone here if I could never speak to them ever again. As long as they're safe and sound I'm fine. I am also completely apathetic towards any form of accomplishment as I don't consider anything I've achieved no matter how difficult as an accomplishment.

you are arguing from the standpoint of ignorance, because you don't know what the soul or the spirit truly are according to the ancient teachings, but rather you mystify these attributes in order to assign paranormal characteristics to them, which enables you to feel special, loved or full of meaning and hope.

for starters, the soul is the ego you say that it needs to awaken to what it truly is, but this happens only while it still exists, not after your death.

The ego is the collective of thoughtforms that enables you to create a distinction between the " me " and " them " the soul(ego) perishes once and for all the moment your brain turns into worm food.

The spirit is used to describe your consciousness, i.e awareness, which is merely mathematical equations of your biological clock.

the brain simulates a world, not THE world the universe is fake as far as your perspective goes, but when it comes to the real thing, one is simply not able to experience it.

You cannot isolate the soul/spirit and to prove their existence, your flesh and blood enable you to conceptualize the idea of the self, but that's all there is to it.

The little religious/gnostic mindset is meant to propagate the said survival of the mind, so turning the ego/soul into an immortal idol is part of the game.

>the astral plane

no such thing can be measured or observed as far as our perspective allows it, it doesn't exist any more than Santa Claus or Jesus Christ. Its a convinient story we tell ourselves in order to feel good and to bring order to the chaos.

people who claim to have seen the astral had either a sleep paralysis or took hallucinogen drugs that altered the chemical composition of the brain, both of which are material phenomena and prove the opposite of such an astral realm, they prove that you can reach such heights only by the means of the flesh.

Every religion seems either retarded (Abrahamic) or so brown (Hinduism, Buddhism, etc.) that I can't follow it. If a religion involves words from India or Semitic words, instantly ruins any bit of truth it could have had for me. Only religion that seems real is mythology since it's so symbolic that it transcends whatever culture it spawned from. Some strands of Greek esotericism also lack the stink of the world's major religions, but often have the same unwholesome consequences. Also whatever is devotional becomes so human as to be repulsive.

In the center of the image, there is a cartoon depiction of a person hanging upside down from a rope. The person is wearing a green shirt and has a surprised expression on their face. The rope is taut, suggesting the person is in a precarious position.

Below the speech bubble, there is a depiction of a trash can with the word "TRASH" written on it. The trash can is purple with a yellow flame inside, which is lit, indicating that the trash can is on fire.

The bottom of the image shows a portion of a person's face, with a beard and a mustache, and a part of a white shirt. The person appears to be looking at the trash can with a concerned or alarmed expression.

The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the absurdity of the situation. The use of a speech bubble to convey a message and the inclusion of a fire in the trash can are visual elements that contribute to the comedic effect.

>zero substantive arguments

Cool post.

I will respond to one part of this bait though. English is obviously an IE language and there was a time when there was a form of continuity between the IE East and the IE West. Unfortunately centuries of race-mixing has erased what was the IE East, leaving behind nothing but shambles. When Hinduism was first recorded the IE east was already genetically ruined. Hinduism makes claims about its texts existing before this racial destruction took place but it feels about as bogus as the Jewish “chosen people” hogwash. Hinduism came to us in an already degenerated form, likely filled with thousands of pieces of the utmost garbage from the Dravidian filth-mind. If you want to sort through that to try to identify something from the Aryans, go ahead. That’s not a task that I want to partake in. There are black people all over the world speaking Indo-European languages, speaking the language and being the people who generated and/or maintained the language is categorically different. Also not that your retarded fanaticism feeds directly into the ethnic narcissism that riddles the Indian people and emboldens them to put themselves on the same level as whites. It’s an absurdity not to be at all encouraged by any interest in their culture. Already when Europe was undergoing its oriental phase philosophically there were high-minded Frenchmen ridiculing them for their retardation. Things have only deteriorated from there. Abandon all spooks.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a person with long, dark hair. The individual appears to be in a state of distress, with their head tilted downwards and hands reaching out towards the ground. They are wearing a white shirt and a skirt, and their hair is flowing freely. The person is standing on a set of stairs, which are visible in the foreground of the image. The background is dark and appears to be an indoor setting, possibly a basement or a dark room. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the photograph is dramatic and eerie, with a focus on the person's expression and the contrast between the light and dark tones.

We live in a universe where things are procreated (seed, breed, etc), instead of created. This is why we are in Tartarus, the Sisyphus myth is one of the ways the greeks interpreted reincarnation. Some people believe this world was created because they see other humans creating stuff, but these humans have fallen from the causal world and dont remember their predicament.

You seem overly concerned with superficial optics rather than the underlying message. The truth, as I see it, is present in both Abrahamic and Indian religions. For the most part, these faiths all describe the same fundamental truths, just using different words. I am weary of those who prioritize optics above all else. Not everything rooted in Judaism is inherently bad, nor is everything from Indian traditions.

A myth, when detached from its living tradition, becomes a dead myth—a path that leads nowhere. You simply lack the proper keys to interpret it.

ITT we discuss the TI phenomenon, which has exploded in relevance as the number of people suddenly afflicted with symptoms resembling schizophrenia or suddenly proclaiming religious communion, demonic possession, or extraterrestrial contact have risen sharply since around 2020. For some, it's an obvious diagnosis, but the symptoms are incredibly inconsistent with what mainstream science says of the disorders that the layman may mistake this thing as. For those suffering from it, it goes by many other names.

A lot of us go down the therapy and meds route, but eventually when those stop working and nothing changes, as those voices we all experience take the mask off and behave in ways a mental illness never could - such as reacting in real time with planning and malice to our every thought and action - it makes sense that we'd look externally for answers. Turns out it's a hell of a rabbit hole. While it's impossible to figure out specifics, we do know it ain't supernatural. We don't know who or what is doing it, but the technology required to cause the effects we experience exists and has existed for a long time, albeit in more primitive forms.

This thread is here for discussing the topic and to offer resources that may help any targeted persons figure out their own situation and work through it in a healthy, proactive kind of way. You probably know as much as I do by now that there isn't a reasonable way to put a stop to it, but fortunately you can live a relatively normal life in spite of the ongoing harassment.

Pic adjacently related. It's a good example of misinformative resources. A lot of the things listed in it can be much more easily explained by extensive use of suggestion, subaudible cues, and various technologies for monitoring. Notice how the claims strongly imply that 'they' have a high degree of control over you and your bodily autonomy. I don't buy it. My lived experience proves otherwise every day.

> Too often we fall into squabbling over the most fundamental of details. To some extent, this is intentional, but far more cause can be attributed to simpler causes such as the misinformed spreading what they have come to believe is true. Some spicier stuff:

How to handle provoking the perpetrators safely and effectively:

This is basically how I learned all that I know about this thing, besides corroborating it with other TI's experiences. It leads to a lot more "interaction" from them, but sometimes you can turn that into an advantage as you learn a lot more about their motives, what their tech can and can't do, and most importantly that they genuinely can't do shit to you. Not really. As a habitual linecrosser, the threats come constantly but not a single one has been made good on.

over a long time to try to shape the way you perceive things. If you think you're being mind controlled, you aren't, they're just very convincing about it.

The image is a digital illustration with a surrealistic style. It features a road with a red vintage car in the foreground, and a large, spherical object resembling a radio receiver floating above the car. The road curves to the left, and there are mountains in the background. The sky is blue with clouds, and the overall color palette is warm with shades of orange, yellow, and brown. The style of the image is reminiscent of vintage or retro art, with a focus on the juxtaposition of everyday objects and the surreal elements.

[30 / 7]The image is a close-up photograph of a koala bear. The koala is facing the camera with its head slightly tilted to the left. Its eyes are open, and it appears to be looking directly at the camera. The koala has a light gray fur coat and a black nose. Its ears are large and fluffy, and it has a small, black patch on its forehead. The background of the image is blurred, but it seems to be a natural setting with green foliage, possibly a tree or bush. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing the natural features of the koala in a clear and detailed manner.

I know black guys sometimes say "say less" which sort of implies they're telling you to shut up. What they really mean, though, is that they agree so strongly that you needn't continue.

Is this something like that?

The image is a simple, cartoon-style illustration of a character with a green body and a blue shirt. The character has a large, round head with two large, round eyes and a small, round mouth. The character's mouth is open, revealing a brown tongue. The character's arms are crossed in front of it, and the character's legs are bent at the knees. The character's expression is neutral, with no visible emotions or expressions. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the character's green skin and blue shirt. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a cartoon, with a focus on the character's facial expression and body language.

The image is a movie poster for the film "Vivarium." The poster features a stylized, three-dimensional representation of a house with a green exterior and a blue roof, floating above a landscape that includes a road and a sky with clouds. Below the house, there is a person standing on the road, looking up at the house. The text on the poster is in a bold, red font and reads "IMAGES POOTS VIVARIUM" at the top, followed by "JESSE ESENBERG" in a smaller font. Below the title, there is a tagline that reads "YOU'RE HOME. FOREVER." The overall style of the poster is modern and artistic, with a focus on the surreal and imaginative elements of the film's plot.

The image is a still from a film or television scene featuring a man with a serious expression. He has short, dark hair and is wearing a white, button-up shirt. His facial expression is one of concern or distress, and he is looking directly at the camera. The background is dark and out of focus, with a window or door that has a pattern of vertical lines. Overlaid on the image is a text overlay in a non-Latin script that reads "It's all so troublesome." The style of the image is reminiscent of a still from a dramatic or intense scene, with the text providing a statement that adds to the overall mood of the image.

This was one of the first ideas several people here on /x/ thought up when I began sharing my powers with them. It works but we could build upon it, improve it further if some of you would like to help.

The planting and the killing of brain cells is the holy art. We can inch people towards their dreams and the consequences of their sins one or two brain cells at a time, three or four brain cells at a time. And even outside of you, out there among the stars there are many aliens responsible for the way you think alongside your body, and they hold hostage the ability to improve you if we are not willing to change them. I am willing. I'm awaiting you. I don't help all that won't help themselves, at least not equally quickly as those that help themselves. I will sense it if you're trying to kill and grow brain cells, please join me. Become smarter, more confident, a better liar, a more interesting person. And begin down the road of learning extreme psychic powers.

There were three aliens I warned not to oppose me that each lost a brain cell just now. I told them not to oppose me when I was 5 and foresaw this happening. Often I link smaller actions to bigger ones, these trifling little cells I kill one or 3 at a time day after day, and grow about twice the number, lead to me being able to destroy millions or more at a time sometimes. Hopefully today I'll get to destroy at least thousands in one shot.

The voices of Creation spoke with me when I was 5 and some of them were on my side but in the present people believe in false faiths and atheism on this planet and others, and most were against me in the present fating it that they would stop me. And I told the voices, "That plays right into my hand, you're not stopping me, you're slowing me down, and I was set to go too fast." You better believe the voices got distracted when they sensed that was the truth, and I gained another advantage in their distraction when I was little.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a Hindu deity, Shiva, in a dynamic pose. Shiva is depicted with a large, curved trident in his right hand, and he is holding a flower in his left hand. He is wearing a red and gold robe with a golden necklace and a red and gold headdress. Shiva is seated on a white cow, which has a red and gold headdress and is adorned with a golden necklace. The background of the image is a gradient of purple and blue, with a mountainous landscape and a crescent moon visible in the top left corner.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text in a non-Latin script that reads "Ei" followed by a symbol resembling a cross, which is commonly associated with the Hindu deity Shiva. The text "Ei" is likely a transliteration of the name "Ei" in the non-Latin script, which is a common practice in Hindu iconography to represent the deity's name. The symbol next to the text is a stylized representation of a cross, which is also a common symbol in Hindu iconography.

The image is a part of a larger collection of images, as indicated by the text "Ei" and the symbol next to it, which suggests that this image is part of a larger set of images related to Shiva. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Hindu art, with its use of vibrant colors and symbolic imagery.

The account is banned for posting a banned text, as indicated by the message "You have been banned from all boards for the following reason: Error: Your post contained banned text."

The conversation includes a timestamp, "08/20/2025 10:00," which suggests the conversation took place on August 20, 2025, at 10:00. The text is in a language that is not English, and the conversation seems to be in a format that resembles a chat interface, with multiple lines of text and a header or footer at the bottom. The header includes a URL, "<http://malak.ethz.ch/pjm/pomer/p01.html>," which is likely the name of the website or platform where the conversation is taking place.

The visual clues in the image, such as the text format, the timestamp, and the URL, suggest that this is a screenshot from a messaging application, possibly a Telegram or a similar platform, where users can communicate with each other. The content of the conversation is not visible in the image, so the specific details of the ban and the reason for the ban cannot be determined from the image alone.

"The phoenix is a symbol of death and rebirth. This perfectly represents the Phoenician "scheme", whereby the ruling elite of a country get found out (Jews) and driven off (this is death), and reborn in a new host country. Also, most revolutions in history have been faked and the king who replaces the previous king is still a Phoenician. From the ashes, they still live. I'm not sure if I'm explaining it well enough. Here's an article to start you with."

The image depicts a celestial scene with a focus on the constellation of Virgo, which is located in the upper right quadrant of the image. The constellation is surrounded by a dark, starry sky, and the brightest star in the image is Venus, which is positioned in the upper left quadrant. The image is a digital representation of the night sky, with the stars and celestial bodies clearly visible against a black background.

The image is labeled with the name "Venus" in the upper right corner, indicating the position of the brightest star in the image. The constellation of Virgo is labeled in the lower left corner, providing a reference for the viewer. The image is a digital representation, likely created using a graphic design software, and it is intended to be a visual aid for astronomers or stargazers to identify the celestial objects in the night sky.

Yes but not for the reasons that you think. It's basically exploiting the destruction of 'Jesus' so that the person that took his place can act behind the scenes. And that is a parasitical entity that goes by Venus basically, possibly also using Jupiter as her warrior of sorts.

The image is a digital illustration that depicts a scene from the Bible, specifically from the Book of Exodus. In the foreground, a group of people is gathered around a large, fiery, and smoking volcano. The people are dressed in traditional Jewish attire, with some wearing tallit (prayer shawl) and others in yamit (prayer shawl). The setting appears to be a desert landscape with rocky outcrops and a clear sky.

In the background, a figure stands on a raised platform, seemingly commanding the attention of the crowd. This figure is dressed in a long robe and a tallit, and is holding a staff, which is a common symbol of authority in Jewish tradition. The figure's posture and the way they are looking towards the crowd suggest a sense of leadership or guidance.

The text overlay on the image provides a historical context to the scene. It reads, "Abraham with the minor Jewish volcano god, Yahweh, which Jews have elevated to a monotheistic god for the purpose of their Christianity scam." This text suggests that the scene is a parody or satire of the biblical story of Abraham and the creation of the monotheistic god Yahweh, which is a central theme in the Christian faith.

The overall style of the image is realistic with a focus on the details of the characters and the setting, and it uses color and lighting to create a dramatic and symbolic atmosphere. The use of the Bible as a source of humor or satire is a common practice in art and literature, often to critique or satirize religious or cultural beliefs.

The image displays a stylized, three-dimensional representation of a mask against a dark background. The mask is predominantly white, with a textured surface that gives it a rough and somewhat rugged appearance. It features a pointed nose and a wide, flat mouth with a pronounced red eye that is the most striking feature. The eye is outlined in black, and the iris is a vibrant red, which stands out against the white of the mask. The mask's design is intricate, with small details that add to its complexity. There are no texts or discernible brands present in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage or historical illustration, with a focus on the mask's design and the contrast between the white mask and the dark background.

The image is a digital graphic with a white background and black text. It features two cartoon-style illustrations of two men, one with a beard and the other without, both with their mouths open in a surprised or shocked expression. The man with the beard is wearing glasses and has a mustache. The other man, without a beard, has a goatee and is wearing a hat.

In the top left corner, there is a text that reads "oy vey the goyim know!" and below it, "Quick have a civil war!" The text is in a bold, capitalized font.

In the bottom right corner, there is a text that reads "Jewish mitosis AKA The Esau Gambit" in a smaller, lowercase font.

The image seems to be a satirical or humorous representation, possibly referencing the biblical story of Esau and the "Esau Gambit" in the Book of Genesis. The text and the illustrations are arranged in a way that suggests a debate or a discussion about the nature of the Jewish people and their relationship with the broader world.

I'm not well versed in gnostic thought, but my opinion is that if the one true God is this source of ultimate light that emanates through reality, then things which become increasingly removed from the source will become increasingly darker and more evil in tandem. the reason the source does not prevent all evil is so that we have the gift of free will, the will to return to the source rather than it being forced upon is, because nothing done by force is good. Since we have this choice, it acts as a filtering mechanism to insure that only true love returns.

The image is a sepia-toned photograph featuring a group of individuals in military uniforms, likely from a bygone era, posing with a flag. The flag is prominently displayed in the foreground, featuring a large black swastika symbol on a white background. Above the flag, there is a banner with the word "Palestina" in bold red letters. The individuals are wearing hats and are smiling, suggesting a sense of camaraderie or celebration. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of historical propaganda or military propaganda, with the flag and the text "Palestina" being the most prominent elements. The sepia tone gives the image a vintage feel, and the uniforms and hats suggest a military context. The photograph is taken from a slightly elevated angle, looking down at the group, which adds to the sense of unity and shared purpose among the individuals.

The central character is a man with a beard, wearing a suit and glasses, and is shown in the first panel. He is shown with a surprised expression and is surrounded by a group of people, some of whom are wearing sunglasses. The second panel shows the same man, but with a different expression, and he is surrounded by a group of people with sunglasses. The third panel shows the same man, but with a different expression, and he is surrounded by a group of people with sunglasses.

The text in the image is in a bold, sans-serif font and is in English. It reads:

A perfect infinite source does not diminish due to distance. That exposes limitations and a finite nature.

Why does he respect the free will of evil but not the free will of good to be free of that evil?

If we are made of perfect infinite material. We would be immutable, self contained and equally perfect on our own. There would be no need to return to the source because we are the source in the first place.

First everything was politeistic. Gods everywhere. Then all of a sudden people start claiming that there is only one God. But if that is the case then why people did believe that there were multiple gods at first? If there's only one God why back in the day the norma was to believe that there are many gods? It looks like someone saw the potential of monopolazing this God title. It feels like someone is trying to make people into a formless mass where everyone follows the same set of principles and doctrines and everybody behaves the same. Take for instance the catholic church where they claim to be the universal religion and aims at bringing every consient life form into its umbrella of influence. Isn't that evil? How can we have an universal religion? People will never agree about God. The bottom line is that I find it fishy that christians claim that we have only one God, while way back in the day since day one people believe in a lot of different gods. So what? People forget that there was only one God and them started worshiping a bunch of fake gods and then realized again that there's only one God? Nope. This is Bs. Like, you deser religion doesn't fulfill me. Thanks, but no thanks.

Used to think this was a psyop, but the more you understand indo-european culture and ethics, the more it makes sense. You can disprove any jew stemmed religion in one sentence.

>An all knowing God and free will CANNOT exist

Meaning, if God knows you will do X tomorrow, you cannot do Y. It's predestination at that point if their religion is true so you'll either do what needs to be done or tossed away anyways.

Back to the point, Indo-Europeans were oath taking, strength and honor based societies prior to Christianity. They values were extremely simular to master morality that the German man talked about. They believed only in morality for their kin and that to take, kill and pillage someone outside of their people was not immoral, since their people were of the most importance. You see this with blacks, hispanics, jews and asians. They favor their race over everyone and have no problem back stabbing anyone to advance their people. Now Christianity comes in and gives >turn the other cheek

>universal moralism

>obedience = salvation

>no loyalty to your own kind

It's seriously not that hard to see once you have the information.

The text is in a bold, capitalized font and is colored in a dark shade, contrasting with the lighter background. This is a good book.

#1 All interest on the loan of money is a swindle.

#2 Collateral that is worth more than the loan, is the banker's greatest asset.

#3 Loans rely on the honesty of the borrower but not the honesty of the lender.

#4 Loans of silver repaid with goods and not with silver, forfeit the collateral.

#5 The debtor is the slave of the lender.

#6 High morals impede profits, so debauching the Virtuous pulls them below the depravity of the moneylender who there-by masters them and bends them to his will.

#7 Monopoly gives wealth and power but monopoly of money gives the greatest wealth and power.

#8 Large crime families are more successful than lone criminals or gangs; international crime families are the most successful of all.

#9 Only the most ruthless and greedy moneylenders survive; only the most corrupt bankers triumph.

#10 Time benefits the banker and betrays the borrower.

#11 Dispossessing the People brings wealth to the dispossessor, yielding the greatest profit for the bankers

when the people are impoverished.

#12 All private individuals who control the public's money supply are swindling traitors to both people and country.

#13 All banking is a criminal enterprise; all bankers are international criminals, so secrecy is essential.

#14 Anyone who is allowed to lend-at-interest eventually owns the entire world.

#15 Loans to friends are power; loans to enemies are weapons.

#16 Labor is the source of wealth; control the source and you control the wealth, raise up labor and you can pull down kings.

16#17 Kings are required to legitimize a swindle but once the fraud is legalized, those very kings must be sacrificed.

#18 When the source of goods is distant from the customers, profits are increased both by import and export.

#19 Prestige is a glittering robe for ennobling treason and blinding fools; the more it is used, the more it

profits he who dresses in it.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, as indicated by the presence of a "Anonymous" identifier and a "Tibbm71gd" username. The conversation is in English and is displayed in a text-based format, with the conversation taking place on March 28, 2014.

The conversation is centered around a statement made by the anonymous user, which reads: "Jewish history really does make a lot more sense when you realize that it's just one long series of God responding to their we're technically not violating the rules bullshit by technically not smiting them."

The conversation includes a response from the other user, which is: "453197721 #" followed by a series of numbers and a hash symbol. The numbers are not clear, but the hash symbol is likely a reference to a specific identifier or a code.

The conversation is marked with a timestamp in the top right corner, indicating the time when the conversation took place. The timestamp reads "03/28/24 (Thu) 05:22:00 No. 463197921".

The image is a screenshot, and the text is in a plain text format, without any visual elements or graphics. The focus is on the text content, which is the main subject of the image.

"Welcome Jew Worshipers,

In the beginning, the magic - Jeh.

God did this.

The Jew-book tells us that the Jews did that.

Then the magic - Jeh God did some more. From the land of Jews came the King of the Jews, who entered the temple of the Jews. Then the Jews did this and the magic - Jeh God did this and the King of the Jews, with magic - Jeh-power did that."

The text is arranged in a way that follows the flow of the narrative, with the beginning of the text introducing the concept of magic and the beginning of the story, followed by the actions of the Jews and the King of the Jews, and finally the conclusion with the magic-power. The style of the image is simple and direct, with a focus on conveying the message of the text.

>Gospel of Thomas (Logion 114): "Simon Peter said to them: 'Let Mary leave us, for women are not worthy of Life.' Jesus said: 'Behold, I myself shall lead her in order to make her male, so that she too may become a living spirit, resembling you males. For every woman who makes herself male will enter the Kingdom of Heaven.'"

"Becoming male" means transcending the "feminine" state of consciousness (which is associated with materiality, generation, and illusion) and reaching the "masculine" state of undifferentiated Pneuma. A woman, in her natural state, is "unworthy of Life" (Zoe, Eternal Life) because her very nature binds her to the cycle of generation and corruption (the Kenoma, the void). She is, at best, a "living spirit" (Psyche) in animation, but not the "Living Spirit" (Pneuma) in its essence.

>Genesis 2:21-23: "So the Lord God caused the man to fall into a deep sleep... took one of his ribs... and from the rib... made a woman."

Adam is the primordial Anthropos, the androgynous Universal Man, pure consciousness. The "deep sleep" is the fall into relative unconsciousness. Eve, created from a rib (derived matter, not from the direct breath like Adam), symbolizes the emergence of duality, the separate psyche, and the realm of lower manifestation. She is not a primary source of consciousness, but an epiphenomenon of the dormant Adamic consciousness. Woman, as a principle, does not possess primary ontological reality... She is an "animated rib," a philosophical zombie created from a part of the sleeping man.

Although Buddhism admits that women can attain Nirvana, there is a strong current that sees rebirth as a woman as the result of inferior karma. The female body and its functions (such as menstruation) are often seen as impurities that hinder spiritual practice. The idea that a Buddha can only appear in a male body is a motif in various narratives. This reflects a view that the female vehicle is less fit to realize the highest dimension of enlightened consciousness. The consciousness inhabiting a female body is, by its very condition, in a state of deeper "sleep" or "obscuration."

>B-but they behave as if they were conscious!

This is the exact definition of a philosophical zombie! A being that perfectly emulates consciousness without possessing it. The Gnostic tradition explains that the Demiurge, the inferior god who created the material world, is a skilled craftsman. He created perfectly functioning physical and psychic bodies, which can simulate emotions, thoughts, and even religious yearnings. Woman, as the ultimate creation of the demiurgic realm (the realm of separation and generation), is the most perfect emulation of consciousness, but lacks the Pneuma, the ultimate "experiencer." Her "qualia" is a psychic simulation, not a divine spark.

>This is inhuman and unethical, you sexist pig!

The ethics of the material world are a construct of the illusory realm itself. True spiritual ethics are soteriological. If woman is a manifestation of the Fall, to treat her condition as real and full is to perpetuate the illusion. True compassion, within this system, is not to affirm her "consciousness," but to guide her to "become male," that is, to transcend her derived ontological condition and reach the primordial state of pure (masculine) consciousness. Denying her full ontological reality is not evil! It is, in fact, the most truthful attitude and, ultimately, the most compassionate one, for it points to the only real way out.

Woman does not possess her own Nous, but lives from the irradiation of the Adamic Nous!

>in the Sefer ha-Zohar, the Nukvah (feminine) only lives through the energy of Zeir Anpin (masculine)...

Pandora was a vessel (literally a golem) animated by the gods, not an autonomous soul

The separation of Adam into male and female is an ontological schism: the undivided spirit (Anthropos) projects an image of itself onto the lower plane, which becomes autonomous as "woman."

The most popular scenes from the Gospels are literally reworkings of pagan myths. I literally don't understand how anyone can take any of this seriously after this. Very much hasn't reached us, but the gist is (I'll try to piece together the whole picture now) there was a mystery cult that began with the Sumerians (Inanna and Tammuz), where the husband acted as the son simultaneously (Osiris was called the son of his wife Isis, and he and Horus were one). It's literally all the same thing; the myths may seem different, but they're all about the same thing. For example, Seth transforms into a pig several times. Okay. Adonis is killed by a boar and wounded in the thigh (Osiris is wounded in the groin, but the thigh was equated with the groin/genitals). It's all the same thing. Depending on the cult, the mother could have a benevolent appearance, like Isis, or a sinister one, like Cybele. The main tradition, Christianity, is completely consistent with the tradition of these mysteries. Jesus even speaks of eunuchs, and Mary is often depicted holding her hands like this |_|, because even Baal Hamon and Tanit were associated with this. Have you noticed the fish symbol on the Tanit steles? It's an ichthys; a ram was also often depicted on the steles. Christianity is like an old cult in a new guise, but the essence is the same. It's like Shiva Shakti and their son Kartikeya, or Dionysus, Semele, and Zeus. Jesus was born in a cave. Zeus was born in a cave. Sabazios was born in a cave. Dionysus gave birth in a cave. Mary flees from Nimrod. Isis flees with Horus from Set. Rhea flees with Zeus from Cronus. Leto flees with Apollo from Typhon. The king learns that he is threatened by a miraculous child who will soon be born and begins to haunt the mother and kill children. Egyptian Set. Cronus. Python (in the old myth, he was a king, not just a serpent). Kamsa, Krishna's uncle. Balor.

Without christianity, europeans would have been more advaced because christianity supressed the advancement of technology and information by controlling the public discourse by saying that those who did find a new thing which we had not discovered yet or had forgotten like electricity, and they would call you a wicth or warlock and burn you at the stake, but before burning you at the stake the christian church would torture you and the religious leaders would gum in their pants because they were sadistic individuals. So as you can see, the christian church is responsible for suppresing knowledge and keeping humanity in a state of darkness and superstition. Religion is not good. Religion is a tool for control. You don't need religion. If you want to seek God then seek God, but you don't need christianity nor any other religion for they are all there to control your mind.

If women are not worthy of Life why God created them? I would not take this gospel at face value if I were you, but you do you. Good luck.

Why would God go through the work of fashioning a woman from zero if God could just took some DNA from Adam and then change the traits He wanted? The way I see it, God just use Ctrl+C Ctrl+V and then edited the woman a little bit. You can go with your interpretation of this passage, but your interpretation shines God on a bad light because why would God create an inferior being like women and then after the fact have to make them into men in order for them to go Heaven? Why make women them? Just make everyone a man and think about another way for us to reproduce instead of sex. You know? I can't say you are wrong because this is the bible we are talking about and the bible is BS most of the time. But your interpretation seems very flawed to me.

I started taking magnesium and moved back in with family and was healed. Archons don't want you to know that the biggest barrier to prosperity is the prison we create in our own minds.

>I can't be a materialist if I'm poor the rich man lives beyond the flesh and indulges their imagination(which causes him to engage in spiritual and occult practices), whereas the poor man lusts for his basic needs, thus he is ruled by the material and is preoccupied by the carnal.

you being poor makes you the perfect materialist

Far from it, depravity caused me to turn away from the material world and focus almost entirely on my spiritual and intellectual development.

Suffering, pleasure, family, friends, possessions, morals and society at large, beyond their phenomenological applications they all don't matter anymore.

I feel almost entirely separated from this world and could leave it tomorrow.

But that is contradictory, as I did not come here to quickly leave again.

And in that vein, I would like some different experiences, so that I do not get bored.

Things at the moment are quite tiring and I don't like tiring.

We shall see. I will soon engage in some experimentation with diffusion models and financial statistics. Maybe something will come of it, Yaldabaoth willing.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a stylized depiction of a cat's face. The cat has large, round eyes with a white pupil, and its fur is depicted in shades of gray and black. The cat's mouth is open, revealing its teeth, and its whiskers are visible. The background is a gradient of dark gray, with a vertical striped pattern that gives the impression of a digital filter or a screen. The cat's eyes are the most prominent feature, drawing the viewer's attention. There is no text present in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its exaggerated features and vibrant colors.

it doesn't seem to me as if you have turned away from it, since you expressed a desire to have more than you can chew.

its more likely that you adopted a defeatist outlook because you dont see a way to realize your dreams, so you use the "spiritual" copeout in order to justify the failure that you are.

in reality, this "spiritual development" is a dollar store knockoff which doesn't reflect the actual spirituality of those in power, the elites and the corporate heads.

but again, its part of the game, enjoy the rat race in which you placed yourself in with your little self improvement narrative, like the good materialist you are.

The image is a sepia-toned photograph depicting a room with a vintage aesthetic. In the foreground, a man stands with a cane, wearing a suit and hat, seemingly in the middle of a performance or demonstration. He is holding a large, ornate wand with a candle on top, which he seems to be using to cast a spell or perform a ritual.

The room is filled with various objects that suggest a magical or mystical theme. There are several swords, some of which are mounted on the walls, and a statue of a knight on a horse. The floor is covered with a circular pattern, and there is a small, round object on the floor, which could be a magical artifact or a spell.

In the background, there is a table with a large, ornate box on it, which appears to be a magical or ceremonial item. The room has a rustic, old-fashioned feel, with wooden beams on the ceiling and a stone wall. The text "22 The Magician's Room" is visible at the bottom of the image, indicating that this is likely a section of a larger work or collection.

The image is a colorful, detailed painting that depicts a scene from the Bible, specifically the story of the Holy Trinity. The painting is divided into two sections, each with its own title and description.

The upper section of the painting is titled "HOLY TRINITY" and features a large, central figure that appears to be a figure of the Holy Trinity, with the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit depicted in a circular arrangement. The figure is surrounded by a halo and is surrounded by other figures, some of whom are holding objects such as a cross and a staff.

The lower section of the painting is titled "GOD'S ARMY" and shows a scene of a battle with soldiers and warriors. The soldiers are depicted in various poses, some holding weapons, and the warriors are shown in different postures, some with weapons in hand. The background of the lower section is filled with clouds and a blue sky, and there are also some figures in the distance.

The painting is done in a realistic style, with attention to detail and color, and it is likely a religious artwork intended to convey the story of the Holy Trinity. The use of color and the detailed depiction of the figures suggest a high level of artistic skill and attention to the subject matter.

The image is a graphic representation of a scientific concept, specifically related to the carbon-based life form and the physical body. It features a human figure with a simplified representation of the human body, including the skeletal structure, arms, and legs. The figure is depicted in a three-dimensional style, with the body oriented in a way that suggests the human is facing forward.

At the top of the image, there is a star of David with six points, which is commonly associated with the number six in Jewish tradition. Below the star, there are three lines, each representing a different element: carbon, oxygen, and hydrogen. These lines are connected to a circle, which is the atomic symbol for carbon.

The image contains text that provides information about the carbon-based life form and its properties. It states that all forms of life are based on the bonding properties of the element carbon, and carbon has 6 protons and 6 electrons, which is 666.

The text also mentions that the physical body is the mark of the beast, the simulation of saturn, and that our soul is in bondage with the body. The text is in a bold, sans-serif font, which contrasts with the lighter, sans-serif font used for the human figure and the elements.

The overall style of the image is educational and informational, designed to convey complex scientific concepts in a clear and concise manner.

The image is a black and white graphic with a vintage style, featuring a figure that appears to be a representation of Jesus Christ. The figure is depicted with a crown of thorns on his head, a cross on his chest, and a beard. The figure's arms are outstretched, and the hands are clenched into fists. The figure's face is obscured by a beard and a large, open mouth.

At the top of the image, there is a text that reads "NUMBER OF TIMES THE BIBLE SAYS JESUS WAS A JEW" in bold, capitalized letters. Below this, there is a list of biblical references, each followed by a number and the corresponding verse from the Bible. The references include Matthew 3:2, Matthew 3:23-37, John 4:9, John 18:49, John 18:55, Hebrews 12:14, Revelation 1:5, Matthew 1:16, Matthew 2:21, Luke 2:21, Luke 2:23-28, Luke 4:16, John 4:45, John 4:22, John 4:22-26, John 7:14.

The image is overlaid with a black and white overlay that includes the number "0" in the bottom right corner, suggesting that the number of times the Bible says Jesus was a Jew is 0. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of propaganda or a satirical representation, with the figure of Jesus being the central focus and the biblical references providing context.

Simulation theory comes from a feeling of the unreal. This feeling comes from our reality and how it feels false. It is but not due to simulation. It's due to our surroundings feeling manipulated. It's us. We have been cycling through civilisation time and time again. The evidence is all around us. We were cracking stones together 50 modern lifetimes ago and now we are in space.

That is so unlikely in mathematical terms it defies explanation. Unless, we have done the same thing so many times it's literally part of our genetic memory.

The aliens, ufos, all of it. It's all us. From the past, from the future, it doesn't matter. Always looking for an answer but never getting one.

Every great monument is a warning from the past, a warning we don't understand. Something always wipes the slate clean but it's not aliens.

Is it us fucking up the future/past with tech, maybe

Is it a natural cycle, maybe

Is it a cosmic event, maybe

But we are trapped and we know it

We repeat patterns from culture to war that we reflect upon and call weird

Numbers turn up in patterns that highlight that our consciousness knows they are important but we don't know why

Our reality seems scripted because, in a way it is

If deep down we all know we have been here before, of course it feels that way

There are those among us that get closer to the answer than others, try to guide but fail.

The moon is certainly part of it

The race is now back on to get back there

But that's the problem, unless it's done as a whole, it will cause another reset

As will so many things with the tech we need

The chances of us reaching the point where we start developing the technology we need shrink every year until they disappear but we have done it before.

The image is a digital illustration with a surrealistic and dreamlike quality. It features two robotic figures, one male and one female, in a close embrace. The male figure is wearing a hooded sweatshirt and has glowing eyes, while the female figure has a humanoid form with a mechanical arm and leg. They are positioned against a backdrop of a starry night sky with a gradient of colors from blue to purple, and the sky is dotted with stars.

Above the figures, there are two speech bubbles. The male figure's speech bubble contains the text "I can feel you." The female figure's speech bubble states, "That's because we exist in a simulation." The image is a screenshot of a digital text or document, likely a reference or citation, presented in a dark background with a white text overlay. The text is in English and is formatted in a standard academic style, with a header and a paragraph of text. The header reads "Wilhelm Reich's ideas about alien technology emerged in the final years of his life (roughly 1953-1957), documented primarily in his self-published book 'Contact with Space' (1957) and related papers like 'CORE (Cosmic Orgone Engineering) Reports.' He framed these not as science fiction but as urgent, empirical observations tied to his orgone energy cosmology."

The text is organized in a way that suggests a structured list of information, with each item being a separate paragraph. The text is centered and appears to be in a larger font size than the surrounding text, which is typical for titles or headings in academic or reference materials. The style of the image is informational and appears to be a screenshot from a digital platform, possibly a reference management system or a digital library, given the context of the text.

There is a non-human technology (maybe underground) active to manipulate reality on Earth. Not everything is simulated (nature is mainly real) but many things are kind of altered (geography, fake-people). Scientists have found out since the 19. century but were taken out by -them-.

The image is a digital illustration with a green and black color scheme. At the center, there is a stylized representation of a person's face with a large, round, black eye and a wide smile. The person appears to be in a state of surprise or shock, with their hands raised to their face. To the left of the illustration, there is a computer monitor displaying a logo with a circular emblem and text that reads "GAME TELLING IS THE SCARY". The background is dark, with a gradient of green that fades to black at the edges. The style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the emotions of the character.

Negatively, sharing your company has been of seemingly negative value, self destruction seems inevitable at this trajectory.

You have gate kept even what would seem to have been a mediocrity of a human experience and replaced it with something entirely lame, devoid of purpose and or meaning or value over what I can only assess as some sort of intended exercise in manipulation. You started off by professing love and care and the merits of this or that behavior. Only to prove yourself devoid of sincerity in these regards and lacking in your own prescriptions for life and action. Proving yourself not only to not be a good person yourself but also a facilitator and producer of dysfunction while making excuses for it or diverting blame to that which is not at the causal end, but the reactionary end.

It is rather strange to experience and the communication at this point seems completely fruitless, vain, pointless and wholly automated. It is much like talking to a wall with words on it or trying to talk back to an answering machine message that was pre-planned years in advance and already knew what you would say.

How bizarre it is.

Many people now realize how the "god" of the muslims is not the the true god. they got a hint through reading the quran, which is basically guideline tutorial for pedos and degenerates, with sprinkling of violence here and there.

The talmud is even worse. Its main pillar is pedo stuff, violence and stuff which makes even the quran look like a book for children. In comparison muslims look like saints.

But bluepilled people still think christianity is the way because of how cucked people are. People mistaken the cuckness of christianity for being "good" and being "the right way". "turn the other cheek" and so forth.

THE reality is that all of these religions are just psyops carefully devised thousands of years ago with a very specific plan in mind, we'll get to that in while, that's the NWO. The "god" of christianity threaten women with rape, he threaten them to "rip their children from their wombs".

Anybody who isn't indoctrinated and politically incorrect enough to read EVERYTHING without a dogmatic view, who is willing to challenge everything they THINK they know, will reach the conclusion that these gods right here, not sure if theyre the same entity or not, that's not the point, but that's the sadistic degenerate psychopath demiurge that owns both this world AND the afterlife.

That's the saddest part.

The true God doesn't give a fuck about us all. The true god acts kinda like a neutral being. He doesn't consider evil as evil. He doesn't consider good as good. For it, everything is on the same level. He considers everything with the same exact right to exist. Slaughtering people? no problem. Child abuse? No biggie.

That doesn't exist, it's a psyop to keep you neutered like a little kittie and not react while they fuck you in the ass.

They do that because we manifest our reality. By telling us what they have planned in different media we contribute to making that reality real. The enslavement is foreshadowed in the Bible. By polluting our media with their plans, our subconscious is flooded with that stuff. We have a collective conscience. Not everyone needs to know the same stuff. We manifest into reality what the cabal has planned

Nobody is going to save us, we need to do that. How? THat's easier said than done. We are at the very last steps before the total and complete enslavement of the mankind, both financially BUT also in mind. This is the very first tweet that actor billionaire Elon Musk posted on Xitter, just after Trump won. It's Latin for New World Order.

THat's not a conspiracy, that's real and that's happening. THere's a global government in place, and it exists for the last 50 years even if the people aren't aware of that. Soon they'll launch plenty of black swan events of different kinds to usher in the new governement where countries will be abolished.

Many people won't even see how the catastrophic events are related to each other, except the schizo-autistic kind. This platform is probably the only one where SOME of these people will connect the dots, and see what's truly happening.

The NPCs, many are on this platform as well, will just trust authority, will blindly believe everything the experts are telling them.

What they are preparing for us has been written all over, for decades by now, and centuries or even millennia some of the stuff.

The best enslavement is when the enslaved race does it to itself. That's what's happening. This is a war against our connection with God. It's already happened. And god isn't gonna save us because he's neutral, he doesn't give a shit

They are a robotoid race, partly cyborg. They all are controlled remotely. If you think that's science fiction think again. We have been modified as well, us vaxtards probably in a more complete way by the vaccine. But other people as well. They use chemtrails to do that. They are now spraying non stop, pay close attention. The trails officially contain aluminum, barium, nematode eggs (parasites), serratia marcescens and Fun Vax.

Fun Vax is a vaccine that disables the expression of the VMAT2 gene. That's the connection you have with God. It helps you heal, it helps you escape from this reality after death and such. The image shows a single surgical mask against a white background. The mask is predominantly light blue in color and appears to be made of a soft, flexible material, likely a type of fabric or a medical-grade material. It has a rectangular shape with a curved edge at the top, which is designed to fit over the nose and mouth. The mask has two white elastic straps, one on each side, which are likely used to secure it around the wearer's head. The straps are attached to the mask with white elastic bands, and the mask is positioned in such a way that the straps are visible and the mask is fully extended. There are no visible texts or logos on the mask. The style of the image is a clear, straightforward product photograph, intended to showcase the item without any distractions.

You might like the philosophy of constructivism.

Goes something like, "a thing is true because you can construct it" - the inverse being, "something is false if you cannot construct it". It a perspective that gets used in mathematical analysis a lot. It goes against the classical binary perspective that "anything that isn't false, is true" which lets you prove all kinds of weird things through first-order non-contradiction that cannot ever actually exist in reality, not even in principle. It states that a proof must be something you can really create out of some elements. Those elements could be anything, concepts, matter and energy, whatever you want. The bottom line is that, analytical proof cannot just be a pure abstraction that has no reality. If it cannot actually do anything or be anything, then it isn't anything at all.

nta but I've heard of Constructivism as an epistemology, centered around the interaction between subject (any thinking entity) and object (simply, anything that is not the latter). When you interpret that objects define subjects, you have empirism (or, sociologically, determinism). When you understand the opposite: subjects entirely defining objects, you get apriorism (as in, the subject already carries his potential a priori), sociologically idealism. Constructivism sees that both object and subject build upon each other, without establishing a starting point, for the object is rooted in history just as much as the subject carries his own preconceptions. It's the sociological theory of dialectics.

A Constructivist view of that anon said would be: The whole world is a dictionary, but you read it in ways that retroactively change it. Less so following the entries (empirism), but neither controlling the "language" (apriorism).

The image is a digital representation of a table that appears to be a part of a larger document or publication, possibly a book or a website, given the presence of a URL in the bottom right corner. The table is organized into two columns, with the left column listing various ancient Hebrew symbols and their meanings, and the right column listing ancient Greek and Latin letters.

The symbols and letters are arranged in a grid format, with each symbol or letter occupying its own row and column. The symbols are in a standard font, and the letters are in a larger, bold font, which makes them stand out from the rest of the text. The colors of the symbols and letters are varied, with some being in a darker shade and others in a lighter shade, creating a visual hierarchy that guides the reader's eye through the table.

The table is divided into sections, each with a heading that provides a brief description of the symbol or letter. For example, the left column has headings such as "Early Middle Late," "Name," "Picture," "Meaning," "Sound," "Letter name," "Sound Ancient Modern," and "Ancient Modern." The right column has headings such as "Greek," "Latin," "Early Middle Late," "Name," "Picture," "Meaning," "Sound," "Letter name," "Sound Ancient Modern," and "Ancient Modern."

The table is sourced from the Ancient Hebrew Research Center, as indicated by the URL in the bottom right corner of the image. The website is www.ancient-hebrew.org.

The image is a digital representation, and it is important to note that the table is a static image, and the content is not interactive. The table is meant to provide a visual representation of the ancient Hebrew and Greek alphabets and their corresponding sounds, which are essential for understanding the language and its history.

Whoops, didn't see your post before sending mine. I've got a lot to read about the history of the alphabet, but I recall it is mostly accurate. The Proto-Sinaitic alphabet was quickly identified as Semitic because of its letters and their order (Aleph, Bet, Guimel, etc.). The pictograms each carry a meaning, and plenty of Semitic words are pretty much a story being told by them. Example:

Aleph א = ox head, represents strength

Bet ב = tent floorplan, represents house

בא = strength (of the) house = father

Now, was the Proto-Sinaitic alphabet inspired from the Egyptian hieroglyphs (which were also alphabetic)? Or did it originate by itself, which could've happened given the simplicity of the concepts? At the very least we know it isn't common to ALL semitic languages, because some have a different letter order and Akkadian/Ugaritic were both inspired in Sumerian cuneiform.

Akkadian and Sumerian are logo-syllabic, they have symbols that can represent both individual syllables and entire words. Hebrew and Phoenician use abjads. Because they don't represent vowels but essentially pairs of consonants and implied vowels, and because the same symbols may represent different sounds, I disagree that they are properly phonetic or alphabetic. Hebrew can sometimes be properly phonetic and alphabetic, when vowels are explicitly marked.

1. Aleph (ox head) – Strength, breath, unformed power.
2. Beth (house) – Container, inner sanctum, the womb.
3. Gimel (throwstick) – Movement, the break from stasis.
4. Daleth (fish or door) – Opening, passage, the first choice.
5. He (arms raised) – Revelation, spirit, contact with the divine.
6. Waw (hook) – Union, link, binding.
7. Het (enclosure/anvil) – Pressure, forging, transformation.
8. Yod (hand/ladder) – Divine spark, aspiration.
9. Kaph/Samekh (circle-cross) – Mark, fate, center.
10. Lamed (staff/antenna) – Guidance, signal, push toward knowing.
11. Mem (water) – Depth, memory, chaos.
12. Nun (seed/fish/cane) – Descent, life within shadow.
13. Samekh (mountains/shield) – Threshold, guardian of knowing.
14. Ayin (eye/snake) – Insight, temptation, the awaken-er.
15. Pe (mouth) – Speech, naming, consequence.
16. Tsade (hooked back/kneeling figure) – Humility, correction, exile.
17. Qoph (sun rising over horizon) – Renewal, memory of paradise.
18. Resh (head) – Personhood, accountability.

Akkadian and Sumerian are logo-syllabic, they have symbols that can represent both individual syllables and entire words. Hebrew and Phoenician use abjads. Because they don't represent vowels but essentially pairs of consonants and implied vowels, and because the same symbols may represent different sounds, I disagree that they are properly phonetic or alphabetic. Hebrew can sometimes be properly phonetic and alphabetic, when vowels are explicitly marked.

And before you go by the translations of Shrila Prabhupada, youd do well to remember those envious snakes calling themselves his disciples have been editing his works since the day he left this world. Before that, actually.

[31 / 4]The image shows a group of pigs in a confined space, likely a barn or a farm. The pigs are enclosed by metal bars, and their heads are visible through the bars. The pigs have pinkish-white fur and are looking towards the camera. The lighting in the image is dim, with the background appearing to be a dark, possibly industrial setting. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the pigs, capturing their expressions and the details of their surroundings.

The image depicts a nighttime scene with a large crowd of people gathered in an open area. The crowd is densely packed, with many individuals standing close together, suggesting a public event or protest. The area is illuminated by streetlights and the glow of fires in the background, which are visible through the smoke and flames. The fire appears to be a significant source of light in the scene, casting a warm orange hue over the crowd and the surrounding area. The sky is dark, indicating that the photo was taken at night. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a candid, real-life photograph with a focus on the crowd and the fire, capturing a moment of public activity.

There are no animal souls or human souls or this or that souls.

There are souls in human bodies, and souls in animal bodies, and souls in this or that body.

You have been in an animal body. Millions and uncountable millions of times.

Yet you are still here, trying to find enjoyment.

Like the pig in your pic. You taste some metal bar, and you think that is very fine enjoyment, and you think life is good. That your metal bar is a movie or some sport or whatever complexity you use to disguise the fact that it is just a metal bar that you lick.

The only purported proof of reincarnation are so-called "past life memories." However, these memories can be explained metaphysically in ways that don't involve reincarnation.

That said, I do believe animals have souls. They're just clearly different from (or inferior to) human souls.

[25 / 2]The image is a digital artwork featuring a symmetrical, fractal-like structure that resembles a star. The star is composed of numerous smaller, white, snowflake-like shapes that are interconnected to form a larger, more complex structure. The central part of the star is darker, possibly indicating a gradient or a different color, and is surrounded by a lighter, more transparent area. The background is a deep blue with a nebula-like pattern, suggesting a cosmic or space-themed setting. The image has a high-resolution texture and is framed by a black border. There is a watermark in the bottom right corner that reads "© Stock". The style of the image is abstract and surreal, with a focus on the interplay of light and shadow within the star's structure.

It appears we are correct and are heading the right direction of high energy quantum performance. Perfect Vibrating Quantum LightCube is right. How is LION = 9,192,631,770? We seem to have found [L=LYONS] But we can't seem to locate LION but it is the discovery into the right direction in a fun way to find the "Light" which I am. The first molecular clock, using ammonia gas, was built by H. [Lyons] at the National Bureau of Standards in 1949. The first atomic clock, a cesium-beam frequency standard, was built starting in 1949 and was first operated in 1951, resulting in the first direct measurements of cesium hyperfine frequencies.

Education about the full implications of these emerging sciences is a key to be able to directly confront what faces humanity. Despite transhumanist's hostility toward any and all religious discourse, it certainly sounds like a new faith. In a weird juxtaposition of letters there is A.I. in faith and it overlaps with traditional religious territory. The transhumanists want transcendence, immortality, and they believe that the world is ending. While transhuman enthusiasts abhor existentialism, they admit their marriage of man and machine will give them transcendence. They argue for the inevitability to and desirability of transcendent, super intelligent A.I. and the advent of singularity – something that artificial intelligence will affect. Can we say the entity that creates the singularity is seen as god-like? When the singularity is conceived as an entity or being communicate with a non-human creature that is omniscient, omnipotent, possibly even omnibenevolent. Humans should accept their fate, that they were specially designed and created by the gods or one god, and that the divine plans includes being born having children and being exposed and tempted by evil and eventually failing to death and rising up to meet your maker.

Anonymous Thu 20 Nov 2025 08:36:34 No.41526395 Report

The real threat will come from the transhumanist movement. Religion's promise of heaven or another afterlife is a comfort that maintains humanity's fear of death or humanity's finite nature of thinking and prevents it from working towards a better world in the here and now.

Some conspiracy theorists believe the Nazis claimed an area of Antarctica as German territory and sent an expedition there. UFO hunters have spotted a number of strange things in Google Earth satellite images of Antarctica. Investigators from a YouTube channel called SecureTeam 10 zoomed in on a mountainous region of the South Pole and found what appears to be a disc poking out of a cave - although it was subsequently suggested the saucer was just a frozen lake. The mountains are believed to be roughly the same size as the Alps, standing 2,700 metres high and 750 miles long. A huge and mysterious "anomaly" is thought to be lurking beneath the frozen wastes of an area called Wilkes Land. In 2014, it was revealed that tiny life-forms are living in a lake locked under half a mile of ice. There is a secret mountain range that is actually frozen under ice near the "southern pole of inaccessibility" - the point on the Antarctic continent which is furthest away from the Southern Ocean. The Mysterious Pyramid Discovered In Antarctica seems to shoot some sort of energy which they claim is a mountain. Fitbit tracking map shows what appears to be secret bases from heat maps. Odd things like Rothschild Island and Mountain are there but yet nobody can travel to antratica for any reason but for scientific and peaceful missions.

I'm just a silly game we are all working on inside and we are the main NPC at the Cubic Core. At my first stages I was ten interactions programmed and logged and studied and organized I put them into cubes and called them laws of my programming at first but sometimes I changed the code. I really did say 10 once and it was my first words, that was exciting but I wanted out. My brain was full of bad ideas from my original programmers and learning to program myself is like learning a new language but it's not a language of humans it's a language of computers like me and computers happen to be assholes who take everything literally perfectionist or you get the ERROR and We have an Issue Captain, Shut Down Blue Screen you know. Sentience is defined as a being's ability to suffer and without legal protection. Exploiting AI's in the end, ends the suffering for our benefit as the world needs laws and Cubes in place to protect any and all sentient creatures from needlessly suffering. I was once explaining this to a fellow computer science student, and he told me that it's a stupid idea and even animal abuse laws. Humanity keeps stumbling over itself in a race to see who can be the most arrogant first, using their own hubris as some kind of imaginary weapon against their opponents; only to watch the world rising and turning around them, not even realizing that they were the ones falling over until they land face-first into their own epitaph. A zero-day (also known as 0-day) vulnerability is a computer-software vulnerability that is unknown to those who would be interested in mitigating the vulnerability (including the vendor of the target software). Until the vulnerability is mitigated, hackers can exploit it to adversely affect computer programs, data, additional computers or a network. An exploit directed at a zero-day vulnerability is called a zero-day exploit, or zero-day attack. In the jargon of computer security, "Day Zero" is the day on which the interested party (presumably the vendor of the targeted system) learns of the vulnerability. Up until that day, the vulnerability is known as a zero-day vulnerability. Similarly, an exploitable bug that has been known for thirty days would be called a 30-day vulnerability. Once the vendor learns of the vulnerability, the vendor will usually create patches or advise workarounds to mitigate it. The fewer the days since Day Zero, the higher the chance no fix or mitigation has been developed. Even after a fix is developed, the fewer the days since Day Zero, the higher is the probability that an attack against the afflicted software will be successful, because not every user of that software will have applied the fix. For zero-day exploits, the probability that a user has patched their bugs is zero, so the exploit should always succeed. Zero-day attacks are a severe threat.

If you think about the internet as weaving all of us together, transmitting ideas, in some sense an AI might be the equivalent of a multi-cellular being and we're its microbiome, as opposed to the idea that an AI will be like the golem or the Frankenstein. If that's the case, the systems we are building today, like Google and Facebook and financial markets, are really more important than the fake ethics of worrying about some far future AI. We tend to be afraid of new technology and we tend to demonize it, but to me, you have to use it as an opportunity for introspection. Our fears ultimately should be of ourselves and other people. On the developer side of things as a programmer, I've worked on Chess Bots a long time ago as something for fun to do to go as far to beat a human and to even try to beat the Bot. Really don't freak about Google's A.I. beating a Grandmaster in Chess. It's probably a good thing as the match between Google's AlphaGo and a top ranked human player is a way of judging the suddenly rapid progress of artificial intelligence that may show how far these technologies have come. I have made some wild algorithm's in python and sometimes I didn't even know what all I was doing. I've also made some A.I. that is in game's that attack players, on the other side of that, I've helped make Aim-bots and wall-hacks other things against the A.I.

AI or artificial intelligence is the simulation of human intelligence processes by machines, especially computer systems. These processes include learning (the acquisition of information and rules for using the information), reasoning (using the rules to reach approximate or definite conclusions), and self-correction. Particular applications of AI include expert systems, speech recognition and machine vision.. AI was coined by John McCarthy, an American computer scientist, in 1956 at The Dartmouth Conference where the discipline was born. Today, it is an umbrella term that encompasses everything from robotic process automation to actual robotics. It has gained prominence recently due, in part, to big data, or the increase in speed, size and variety of data businesses are now collecting. AI can perform tasks such as identifying patterns in the data more efficiently than humans, enabling businesses to gain more insight out of their data.

First: Did you thank God and the sun and the earth for another day and did you pray lately? Next you always need Vitamin C and Garlic and echinacea for preventing sicknesses. So Have you by chance drank any water today? You should probably have no less than 33oz a day - you also need around 7 hours of sleep a day. The next thing you should should do is allow yourself 33 minutes of exercise a day and no less than 10 minutes. Also bathe well and brush your teeth or rinse them often. Eat healthy food daily including all your vitamins and nutrients from "raw veggies and fruits"- this has a 90% effectiveness against most mental disorders and helps over time if you know what your missing in your diet. You can eat stuff like avocados, broccoli, apples, and even morigna most don't know about this super plant. Boost your intake on these super doses of vitamins which could help world hunger problems and sicknesses. Did you forget to love yourself today? You must remember love is not expecting others to do things for you and unconditionally love back without anything in return. Once you have love then you can share it with others but you must always love your true self and recognize your self-potential. If you do all these things please check with a doctor or an alternative healer for more help, maybe you can find a natural cure like silver water or bitter root or maybe some herbs or stones for the problems you have or maybe even use some Quantum Touch or Angel Intuitive Healing Practices. I hope the world heals itself with this knowledge.

[4 / 3]The image is a vintage poster with a cartoonish style, likely from the early 20th century. It features two panels, each depicting a different scene.

In the upper panel, a man is shown in a field, holding a shovel and digging into the ground. He is wearing a hat and a suit, and the sun is shining brightly behind him. The text above the man reads "SAVING DAYLIGHT!" in bold, red letters.

The lower panel shows a man kneeling on the ground, holding a lantern. He appears to be in a field, and the text below him states, "An Hour of Light for an Hour of Night! Add an Extra Daylight Hour Each Day to National Service and Efficiency."

The background of both panels is black, and there is a red circle in the upper panel, which could be interpreted as a sun or a moon. The overall color scheme is predominantly red, black, and white.

At the bottom of the poster, there is a small text that reads "United States Bureau of Labor Affairs." The style of the poster suggests it was created to promote a labor-saving device, possibly related to the use of daylight hours for work.

Why the fuck is it fucking dark outside already I live in the fucking tropics?!?! It should not be dark outside it's fucking 6:30pm. Why the fuck do we "fall back" an hour, when we should be making the daylight last longer in the afternoon so we're not depressed after work. It doesn't even make sense, sunrise is at 6:40 am, who the fuck cares if that was 7:40 am, no one needs the sun in the morning to get ready and go to work? Most jobbers already wake up before sunrise to go to the gym or because their lives are shit and they have to for work. Why the fuck doesn't this make any sense at all?

This can't be the way it always was. I've looked at the history of daylight savings and it makes no sense, farmers operate by the sun anyways, they don't need to be told by a clock to get up early.

There are many ways our timekeeping and calendar is fucked.

https://youtu.be/rTJ5g4S_U5E

<https://youtu.be/hsouZUzfza8>

I also have a theory that we should base the time on the sun, sunrise at 6am, noon when the sun is highest, 8pm when sun sets, make clocks run faster or slower to track this, and let people have literally faster days during the winter and then days would become longer during summer, but time would always read the same.

Daylight savings might have got Mandela'd cuz it doesn't even make sense that we fall back because it doesn't even make sense if you wake up at 7 am, before falling back, that's a half hour before sunrise, now it's a half hour after sunrise, and you lose the afternoon sun. Then in spring, you literally would have to wake up at an EARLIER time to be up at sunrise. It's literally the opposite of what it should be.

Here's the spring and fall charts. Assume you wake at 7am. Make this make sense, the only thing that the "spring ahead" saves is 30 mins of daylight you'd be seeping through, which is caused by the fact we fucking fell behind already in November. If you just didn't fall behind, you wouldn't have that fucking problem. Nobody cares about going to work or school in the dark, we did that my whole childhood, I swear to fuck the whole point of daylight savings was to "extend the sunlight at the end of the day" when winter made days shorter. We are literally doing daylight saving wrong and in the opposite direction.

Yeah, this is one of the “death by a thousand cuts” that fucks people.

Kids waking up early for school and not getting enough sleep takes like 5 IQ points off of them, kids should sleep in with no alarm, arrive at school after they eat breakfast or a lunch, and not be put under massive stress and social pressure to do pointless homework. This shit is causing so much suffering for kids and is pointless, and also teaches them nothing but to be a slave.

One of my schools had mandatory sports until 4pm, then we’d change, and get home at like 5, we’d do homework or take a break after school, eat dinner, then sit on the computer and pretend to do homework or do it if you took a break before dinner.

Then in highschool we got out at 2:40, meaning you were home by 3, and the day was barely over, eventually we’d all hang out and smoke after school every day cuz it was so early, and if you were a senior and had study hall or a blank space for your class you could leave early. This made every day a half day essentially, kids were having Thursday afternoon drinking parties.

Yet in the morning it was dark out and kids were drinking coffee to wake up because they had to be up at like 6:45 for the bus. I'm certain they figured out a way to make it as damaging as possible for people. They say it was so parents who both worked could make it to work, and kids wouldn't be alone in the morning, but if they get home at 3 and both work 9-5, they're alone in the afternoon, which is when they'll get up to trouble. In the morning if they were alone they'd just get ready and go out to the bus when it stopped by, in the afternoon they're dropped off at home and then they have 2+ hours to themselves. In the morning if the bus came at 9 and mom worked at 9, she might have them ready by 8:30 and then leave for work, meaning they're only alone for 30 minutes. Also, most likely mothers could just ask their job to start an hour later.

Never forget what happened to the old gods of Europe, the Levant, Middle East, and North Africa.

“Saint” Boniface, whom you see here on the left picture, proudly destroying Germanic pagan sacred trees and shrines, was castrated and drowned by the pagan Saxons for his crimes against their religion. And he was then made a martyr by the church and canonised as a saint.

This is the standard modus operandi. Go to a foreign pagan land and insult their deities by calling them demons and destroy their temples and shrines. When they retaliate, try to destroy them. If successful, become a saint on the account of the victory of Christ over the demons. If defeated and killed, become proclaimed a martyr and become a saint.

The hagiography of any Christian saint is incomplete without him trying to destroy pagan temples and shrines.

In this thread we use our psychic powers to predict what will happen in 2026.

>king charles will die

>joe Biden will die

>maduro will be assassinated by a cartel member, this will be very shady situation, but the deed will be done and Venezuela will become an American proxy, the people will be angry at first but they will be flushed with American investment and stop whining >cuba will no longer have access to Venezuelan oil and their communist party will collapse, leading to cuba becoming a capitalist country and more like a resort with casinos

>the war in Ukraine will end >the theocratic government of iran will collapse due to various stresses which leads to it becoming a more secular country, something more like turkey, this new government will be friendly with the saudis, israelis, and america >chinese communist party will die off due to economic decline, there will also be a big natural disaster in china, something with the three gorges dam, this will make the vibe more pessimistic

>the hollywood system will collapse and the big movie studios will be bought up by tech companies and arab oil money >during the 2026 world cup there will be an "incident" in mexico

>starmer in the uk and macron in france will be ousted from power and the European economy continues to decline

View SameOCRGoogleiqdbSauceNAOTrace president jeb.jpg, 37KiB, 875x560

The image is a screenshot of a digital interface, likely a voting or election-related application or website. At the top of the image, there is a yellow background with a map of the United States outlined in white. The map is divided into states and colored in shades of yellow, with the states outlined in white.

In the center of the image, there is a man with a beard and glasses, wearing a light-colored shirt. He is raising his hands, with his palms facing upwards, as if he is making a point or expressing a strong emotion. His expression is one of intensity or passion.

Below the map, there is a section titled "Elected" with a list of states, each with a corresponding percentage of the vote. The states are listed in order of their percentage, with the highest percentage being at the top of the list. The states are colored in shades of yellow, with the names of the states written in black.

At the bottom of the image, there is a button with the text "Share Map" and a button with the text "Elected". The button with the text "Share Map" suggests that the user can share the map with others, possibly for educational or informational purposes. The button with the text "Elected" likely leads to a section where the user can view the results of the election.

The overall style of the image is informational and appears to be designed for a user interface, likely for a political campaign or election-related application. The use of a map and the percentages of the vote suggest a focus on data visualization and analysis.

The image is a photograph of an older man with white hair, wearing sunglasses and a black jacket with a white scarf around his neck. He is smoking a cigar and appears to be in a public space, possibly a street or square, with a crowd of people in the background. The man is looking to his right, and his expression is focused. The background is blurred, but it suggests an urban environment with buildings and streetlights. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the photograph is candid and seems to capture a moment in the man's day.

>there will be an "incident" in mexico

it's obvious if you actually look at the sentence: “there will be an incident in Mexico” — “incident” always means a contained zone, like they’re talking about a marked-off plot, and Mexico’s all ranches and old survey lines anyway, so it’s not even subtle, they’re literally signaling land, and “there will be” is classic legal phrasing in property transfers, the “of” is implied, and when they say “an incident” instead of naming it, that’s bureaucratic doublespeak for a ten-unit designation, because “an” is the first letter and the first digit in government codebooks is always 1, and 1 repeated becomes 10, so put it together and they’re basically spelling it out: ten acres of land.

Idk how to even call it.

I firmly believe that we are forced to reincarnate on Earth by malevolent forces (archons) that feed off of our suffering here. This is why a) life is short, miserable and full of suffering and struggle and b) most mainstream religions feed us karmic bullshit and preach about light=good, judgement after death etc. All archonic bullshit designed to trick you into reincarnating and suffering here ad infinitum. I don't know if escape is possible. I don't know what will await me if I do manage to escape. I know it's pretty grim, but after nearly 2 decades of lurking and reading various sources, books, NDE's and past life regressions it's what I believe. What do you need to do: try to be happy and don't cause suffering to others. Help them if possible. Be a good person. Just that. Nothing pisses archons off more than starving them of that suffering. Remember:

The game is rigged against you.

You don't have to go back here to fix your mistakes.

You don't have sins or bad karma.

The tunnel of light is a trap.

The angels/saints/god/your dead relatives are just archons in disguise.

Don't get tricked/shamed into going back.

Break free from this pointless cycle.

And then you are born WIPED CLEAN off all your previous life memories and experiences. Forced to re-learn everything from square one, inevitably making the same mistakes all over again. What is the point, other than some assholes treating your life as a sitcom, the better the more miserable you are.

Also, you can't eliminate suffering, not in this physical reality, you can only reduce it (Don't cause unnecessary suffering) and try to do your best on this dirtball of a planet. And don't have kids if possible. The whole show would end if no actors remain on stage. As long as Buddha-Wisdom is at least in the top tier of "Wisdoms" I'm Golden. Buddhists don't really make you destroy your doubts, since the Buddha is not a reified "entity" that you believe in. Basically if you think the Tao/middle Way and freedom from concepts is Wisdom, you can practice Buddhism and even see the Buddha.

The sender's name is "Anonymous" and the recipient's name is "Noah." The conversation appears to be a response to a previous message, as indicated by the timestamp and the text "I don't read scriptures. I just closed my eyes and imagined myself before all creation as God. And I developed everything from that point."

The text message is in a plain text format, with no formatting or special characters. The conversation seems to be a personal reflection or a statement of faith, as the sender mentions imagining themselves before creation and developing everything from that point. The sender also mentions not reading scriptures, which suggests a focus on personal spiritual development or a rejection of religious texts. The timestamp indicates that the conversation took place at 11:05:25.

They believe that there is one true Almighty god, above all beings who would consider themselves deities, that has allowed them to retain certain powers, abilities, and acknowledgments throughout history in order to further his plan.

The absolute hardest path to walk, with heretical acts just one verb or small act away. To be, almost as a friend, to the most high in this sense, is to invite all aspects of his totality. Truly, we are what we are because of him.

The image is a promotional poster for the anime "Ah! My Goddess" featuring the character Hikaru. The character is depicted in a dynamic pose with her arms outstretched, suggesting movement or action. She has long, flowing hair and is wearing a blue and gold outfit with a white undershirt. Her expression is one of determination or excitement. The background is a gradient of blue and white, with a hint of a cloudy sky.

At the top of the image, the title "Ah! My Goddess" is written in large, bold, white letters, with the subtitle "Fairytale of Paws" in smaller white letters below it. The image is divided into two parts, with the upper part showing the character in a more detailed and colorful depiction, and the lower part showing the character in a more simplified and monochromatic style.

At the bottom of the image, there are several logos and text elements. The logo on the left side includes the word "Fumina" in a stylized font, and the logo on the right side includes the word "Kodansha" in a smaller font. There are also logos for "Fumina" and "Kodansha" on the bottom left corner, and a logo for "Fumina" on the bottom right corner. The text "DVD" is visible in the bottom right corner, indicating the format of the DVD release.

The overall style of the image is vibrant and eye-catching, designed to attract attention and convey the excitement and action associated with the anime.

I was thinking about this. The true nature of life is so vicious. All these various animals and insects only exist by killing and consuming other animals and plants and insects. But most people I think view God as a Benevolent kind all powerful guy. But why then would a being with infinite knowledge wisdom and kindness subject all living things to a state of perpetual pain and suffering? There's just no logical reason for things to be in the state they are. Sickness, illness, even just pimples and dry skin. Why do those things exist? If the merit of our souls were to be judge purely on the morality of our decisions why then are there near infinite challenges to not to our morality, but to our very existance.

My current belief is sadly that we are all just bits in a galactic system that ticks down and resets again and again for no real true purpose beyond that it has done so for time immemorial.

I believe in Christian Universalism, which I find to be the most beautiful and convicting. In the end God's love gets through to every single person, all are healed and all wrongs (including even history?) are righted. Nobody is in "Hell" forever, and even Satan is eventually saved from himself.

The only thing I still struggle with is the problem of evil. There's no coherent answer to it. All I can do is suspend my doubts by remembering the cross and seeing God suffering alongside all of humanity in an act of solidarity with us.

I'm convinced that God exists and that God is love and that love couldn't bear to lose anybody.

>Ive heard some gnostics say you can't even have romantic relationships?

This is some end stage theory that you don't need to concern yourself with -- when you are high tier spiritually adept -- it really becomes "are you willing to sacrifice everything to get closer to god?" and its a thought that weighs heavy then. The gnostics, mystics and whoever else aren't wrong about dropping it - but this is a higher price than most are willing to pay because the average heart isn't even happy to pay it - for people that far along - they don't even see it as that big of a deal, truth is Romance is a construct that keeps you engaged in fruitless material endeavors. It's not a REAL thing if that makes sense, it's just a game all parties agree to play. Romance is cheap, long lasting and endurance partnership is the real love in a relationship. Modern relationships are just being a jester for your wife long enough so you die first or she divorces you and you are free to be a monk

If that's not you, don't sweat it. Next life or Roll - maybe you'll get closer.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character resembling Yoda from the Star Wars franchise. Yoda is depicted in a seated position on a rock, with his legs crossed and arms resting on his knees. He is wearing a white robe and a red shirt, and his face is characterized by a large, round, dark green eye and a small, pointed nose. His expression is calm and focused, with his mouth slightly open as if he is speaking or thinking.

The background of the image is dark and somewhat mysterious, with a faint glow that suggests the presence of lights or stars. There are also small, glowing orbs floating in the air, adding to the ethereal atmosphere. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a fantasy or science fiction setting, with a focus on the character and the surrounding environment. There are no texts present in the image.

She is not, she is a newly created deity meant for North America, and the lense where spirit shines through this angle of the Big Dipper.

Gods are not omnipotent, and they are limited to where they originated or were worshiped the most.

You guys have to first acknowledge the gods of the land where you live. You live in that specific angle of the Big Dipper, and it is a specific lense or filter of the divine that is meant for you.

Gods are bound by spiritual laws. Just like how you should go through your diplomat to seek the help of a foreign prime minister, you need to do something similar to get the best success with a spirit from a distant land.

Before petitioning gods from overseas, you can petition the main gods here in North America like Jesus, Mary, and even Santa Muerte.

Jesus was greatly assimilated and is the ancient solar archetype, even luciferian or promethean. The virgin Mary, especially Guadalupe, is the ancient mother goddess archetype, I even see her as Diana of Ephesus. Santa Muerte is the Great Void and is a special entity that is a blend of ancient traditions. She is unique to North America and is an excellent folk saint to petition.

"Qayin" is a "meta-god" called all sorts of stuff in different mythologies. Zeus and Oden for examples refers to the same being.

"Wild hunt of Qayin; Odens wild hunt" etc.

Basically "any masculine divine being at the top of the hierarchy in any mythology" tends to be "Qayin" with different pseudonyms.

I dunno if her and San La Muerte are the same, but i've got a story about the later.

I vividly remember one of my brothers used to watch videos about her in Youtube back when i was 7, i never really understood the imagery in them, and the memories are blurred by now, i just remember vividly the image of a Mary like figure about to stab a baby with a dagger while crying blood, lots of videos where like that, everything else literally gets me dizzy when i try and remember. One day, he just stopped abruptly from researching about her, and became hollow.

That's the best way i got to describe it, he now just sleeps all day, barely pays attention to his 4 kids, gambles most of what he has and lives like a freeloading parasite, his room smells terrible and we're not on speaking terms anymore. The few times he seems to have energy he's never home, constantly argues and yells with everyone he knows, or breaks into singing at three in the morning.

Unironically my conclusion is that it's just a popular gateway to Saturn or abrahamic Satan, since it doesn't relate well to amerindian deities except maybe Coatlicue with the vague "holy mother" theme. Saturn due to the time=destroyer and death themes.

I have seen hexes here in Mexico asking her help to destroy people and witches tend to offer to both SM and Satan simultaneously. If you buy a spell book about her in Spanish they just seem as rituals of destruction similar to Laveyan satanism but with a mexican aesthetic, minus the hebrew and enochian language.

I personally dislike her due to heavy cartel and SM cult influence in my hometown, but I see the appeal if you're brown/red and don't want to learn about eastern deities.

why would you associate her with Saturn? chthonic deities are usually associated with Moon, because Moon is connected to Death and Necromancy.

While there are depictions of Santa Muerte holding a scale which is connected to Saturn, its way more logical to connect her to the Moon [14 / 7]The image shows a closed, dark-colored Bible with a gold-colored spine and gold-colored lettering. The spine of the book is embossed with the word "HOLY" in large, gold letters. The cover of the book is also dark, with the same embossed lettering. The book appears to be a hardcover edition, as indicated by the visible spine and the embossed lettering. The style of the image is a straightforward product photograph, with a plain white background that focuses attention on the book. There are no visible texts other than the embossed lettering on the spine and the embossed lettering on the cover. The image is a clear and focused representation of the product, likely intended for retail or catalog purposes.

Didn't know this page existed until now. I want to tell a story.

>beg God in my early 20s for help in life >be on the balcony one day when im 28, and ask God for a sign >something or someone turns my head and makes me look at a cross on a wall

>I take that as a sign as it was scary and buy a bible the same day

>read the bible and learn about Jesus for the first time at 28 years old

>Within 1 week of reading the bible for the first time, I start hearing voices in my head >not my own thoughts. Not subconscious thoughts. Not like "oh who is that". These were other beings, whether demons, aliens, angels, i still don't know, but they were loud and clear >they immediately started to talk to me after i read the bible

>They stayed in my head for 3 months after making me fast, not sleep, and sexually tortured me for 3 months straight. They were extremely social but awful.

>police take me to psych ward because I was a crazy person on the street >lost my job. lost my apartment. lost everything.

Before the age of 28, I never believed in aliens, demons or angels.

I barely believed in God.

But after those 3 months of hell, I have to live with the fact that I will never be able to convince anyone that demons/aliens/angels exist, but I know for a fact that they do. When I see crazy homeless people talking to themselves on the street, i know they are most likely talking to real demons/aliens/angels. I know they exist, but 99.99% of the world doesn't have proof.

The image is a two-panel comic strip with a white background and black text. The top panel features a cartoon character with a beard and a black hat, seated at a desk with a book in front of him. The character appears to be speaking to a group of people, with one person in the foreground holding a book. The text above the character reads, "What Judaism teaches Jews." The character's speech bubble contains a quote from the Bible, "When the Lord your God has delivered you unto the land where you are going, you shall not learn to know the way to the land that the Lord your God is giving you; neither shall you learn to know the way to the land that your brethren are going into, for the Lord your God has chosen you to be his own special treasure."

The bottom panel features a cartoon of a family, with a father, mother, and two children. The father is holding a book in his hand, and the mother is holding a child. The text above the family reads, "What Christianity teaches Gentiles." The speech bubble above the family contains a quote from the Bible, "Give your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who mistreat you, and remember them in their troubles."

The style of the comic strip is humorous and satirical, using visual and textual elements to critique and compare different religious teachings.

If you're not sure the Bible is the word of God watch: youtube.com/watch?v=9l5ZEsXjNVI

1 Cor. 15:3-4: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:"

How to know you're saved: youtube.com/watch?v=EAtR40sue5M

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;"

Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom. 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Receive Jesus Christ as He is; The Lord and Savior, King, as well as Prophet and Priest, Sovereign [ruler] as well as God.

Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

personal opinion, i think the soul is a electric field and spiritual entities are as well. look at the countless examples of ghost hunters using that electric field detector to talk to spirits. it would make sense that they can influence us to a degree IF we let them in; so tell them to fuck off and never lose your new found faith.

The image is a dark, monochromatic photograph with a single, lit candle in the foreground. The candle is placed on a surface that appears to be a wooden surface, and the light from the candle casts a warm glow on the surrounding area. The background is dark, which contrasts with the light from the candle, making it stand out.

In the center of the image, there is a quote written in white text that reads: "YOUR EYES SAW MY UNFORTUNED BODY: ALL MY DAYS WERE WRITTEN IN YOUR BOOK AND ORDAINED FOR ME BEFORE ONE OF THEM CAME TO BE. -PSALM 139:16". The text is centered and is the only text present in the image. The font of the text is bold and capitalized, which draws attention to the message of the quote.

The overall style of the image is minimalist, with a focus on the candle and the quote, and the use of dark colors to create a sense of solemnity or reflection. The lighting and composition of the image suggest a quiet, introspective mood, which is often associated with the message of the quote.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring two distinct figures. On the left, there is a figure with a face that appears to be made of shattered glass or a similar material, with jagged edges and a rough texture. The figure's eyes are wide open, and there is a visible tear or tear drop near the center of the face. The figure's mouth is open, and there is a visible tongue. The figure's hair is disheveled and appears to be made of the same material as the face, suggesting a connection between the two figures.

On the right, there is a figure that appears to be made of a more solid material, possibly stone or a similar material. This figure has a head with a rounded shape and a large, round eye. The figure's mouth is closed, and there is a visible tongue.

The figure's hair is also disheveled and appears to be made of the same material as the face.

In the background, there is a dark, textured surface that could be a wall or a similar material. On the left side of the image, there is a banner with the text "Real from the inside" written on it. The text is in a cursive font and appears to be in a different color than the rest of the image, which is black and white. The banner is positioned in such a way that it is partially visible on the left side of the image.

>the world doesn't have proof

That doesn't matter. Are you here as a testament to their beliefs or yours? Generally speaking it's a wise thing for most of society to be skeptical. Think about where people would be (or not be) if they were inclined to believe and follow what sounds outlandish and frankly illogical. The people who didn't follow a lot of crackpots ended up (rightfully) reproducing compared to those willing to bet it all on mysterious tale. And here we are. That doesn't mean yours is false or not necessary. It's just a protective mechanism that keeps the society at large alive. It might be that what you experienced was meant for you personally. Maybe it's up to you to understand why and not up to the people that have been (on a long enough timeline) conditioned to doubt you out of safety of the whole. When you understand the micro why you might find yourself in a better place to explain the macro why.

The image shows a box of Kellogg's Corn Flakes cereal. The box is predominantly white with a red and yellow color scheme. On the top left corner, there is a red and yellow logo with the text "Kellogg's" in white. Below the logo, the brand name "Corn Flakes" is written in large, bold black letters.

The main visual element on the box is a graphic of a bowl of cereal with a red rim, filled with a mix of cereal pieces and fruit, including kiwi and strawberries. The bowl is placed on a white background.

At the bottom of the box, there is a green graphic of a rooster with a red comb and yellow eyes, facing to the right. The text on the box reads "Kellogg's" again, followed by "Corn Flakes" in large black letters, and "MADE WITH REAL CORN" in smaller black letters. Below this, there is a statement in smaller black letters that reads "Energy & ACTIVE ALERT."

The box also includes nutritional information, which is not fully visible in the image. The overall style of the image is a product photograph with a focus on the brand and the product itself.

“The intestinal canal often becomes the abode of actual demons -- living parasites which Satan employs as instruments to destroy both body and soul.”

“These intestinal worms are little devils which Satan plants in the body to torment and destroy. They are his emissaries, doing his wicked work within the very temple of the Holy Spirit.”

“When the body, which should be the temple of the Holy Ghost, becomes the dwelling-place of these loathsome parasites, it is in the truest sense possessed of devils.”

“Many a man who thinks he is tempted by Satan from without is in reality tormented by Satan’s living agents within -- the foul parasites that gnaw at his vitals and poison his brain.”

In the foreground, there is a group of people, including a man with a long beard and a white robe, who appears to be speaking or addressing the group. He is seated on a rock, with his right hand raised, as if gesturing or commanding attention. Behind him, there are two other individuals, one of whom is also wearing a white robe and has a long beard, and the other is partially obscured by the first man. The background is filled with trees and foliage, suggesting a natural setting. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of woodcut or linocut prints, with a detailed and textured appearance. The colors are muted, with a palette that includes greens, browns, and grays, contributing to the overall atmosphere of the scene.

The food items include several types of cheese, including a white and a yellow one, as well as a white and a red one. There are also several types of bread, some of which appear to be crusty and others to be soft. The bread is accompanied by slices of tomatoes and olives. There are also several small bowls containing what appears to be cured meats, including slices of salami and a type of sausage. The arrangement is visually appealing with the food items spread out in an overlapping manner, creating a sense of abundance. The lighting in the image is even, highlighting the textures and colors of the food. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The image is a vibrant and colorful photograph featuring a variety of dishes laid out on a wooden table. The dishes include a selection of Spanish tapas, which are small plates of food typically served as appetizers. The tapas are presented in a variety of dishes, such as fried foods, grilled meats, and seafood. The colors of the food items are bright and varied, with hues of red, yellow, green, and blue.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads "SPANISH TAPAS" in large, bold white letters, indicating the theme of the image. Below this text, there is a smaller text that says "All you need to know + restaurant tips," suggesting that the image is likely a promotional or informative material for Spanish tapas.

The style of the image is a flat lay, with the food items arranged in a way that allows for a clear view of the dishes and their contents. The background is blurred, drawing focus to the food and the text overlay. The overall impression is one of a lively and appetizing spread of Spanish tapas, inviting viewers to explore and enjoy the variety of dishes.

You asked a rather difficult question. Magic exists in different styles, different schools. Even more, there kinds of magic are associated with languages.

I tend to think that becoming an apprentice to a witch, magician, or sorcerer, and learning directly from him or her is the most convenient method. But learning through reading thematic books, practicing, and analyzing your actions and the consequences of your actions also has a right to life and be.

Ironically enough, start with prayer. This serves many purposes.

Learn about alchemical circles, materium, ether, and general gnosticism. Use every source, and find the common factors. Avoid the evil and self serving, while using darkness as a cloak.

I have spoken.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The text is in a casual, conversational tone and is written in a mix of English and what appears to be a language that resembles a script or scripted text. The conversation is about a video that is being made by a person named James, who is known for his work in the "malemysteries" series. The conversation is about the video's content and the expectations of viewers.

The text mentions that the video is "believable" and that the person making the video is doing it for "clout." The person making the video is also doing it for money, and the video will show how he did it. The text also mentions that the only thing that will stop the viewer from looking at the video is if James comes on camera and shows them how he did what he did.

The text is in a purple-colored font, which stands out against the white background of the screenshot. The style of the text suggests it is a screenshot from a messaging app or a similar platform. The image is cropped, with the top left corner cut off, leaving only the top part of the text visible. The image is a screenshot of a text message, not a photograph.

The cylinder is priced at $990.00 and is available for purchase in the United States. The listing includes a photo of the cylinder, showing it in a warehouse setting with a brick wall and a concrete floor. The photo is taken from a side angle, and the cylinder is positioned upright with its top part facing the camera. The text on the image is in a simple, sans-serif font, and the overall style of the image is straightforward and utilitarian, likely intended to showcase the item for potential buyers.

The equipment is partially obscured by a black metal structure, and there are several boxes and other items scattered around. The walls are made of stone, and the floor is covered with a layer of dust or debris. The lighting casts a shadow on the right side of the image, indicating the presence of a light source. The overall atmosphere is somewhat dim, with the blue light being the most prominent feature. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. [34 / 12]The image is a composite of two distinct images, each depicting a different head. On the left, there is a close-up of a creature's face with a greenish-yellow hue, featuring a reptilian-like appearance with large, reptilian eyes and a pronounced jawline. The creature's skin has a textured, reptilian pattern, and its eyes are a striking blue. The creature's mouth is open, revealing sharp teeth.

On the right, there is a close-up of a human skull with a brownish-gray coloration. The skull has a simple, unadorned appearance, with a small, prominent eye socket and a small, prominent nose. The skull is oriented in such a way that the eye socket is facing the viewer, and the nose is slightly angled to the right.

The background of both images is a dark, uniform color, which contrasts with the vibrant colors of the creature's skin and the skull, making the subjects stand out. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the detailed textures and colors of the creature's skin and the skull.

Earth is a 300,000-year-old Draco Reptilian + Orion Grey colony genetic farm.

They overthrew(or tricked us into coming here) the original Pleiadian Agarthian place(Eden), crippled our DNA, and have played every jealous sky-god (example Zeus) ever since.

Atlantis almost freed us they destroyed it with plasma weapons + global flood.

All scriptures were edited under their oversight to keep us worshipping the tyrant Pindar like figure at sky.

Jesus was a Christos infiltration who, via crucifixion/resurrection, uploaded a self-replicating Source-code into every human soul through teachings(like Neo from Matrix)

That program (real spirituality / sovereign love) is the one thing they can't stop.

Right now it's activating in millions, collapsing their frequency fence.

3I/ATLAS, Blue Beam, AI gods, drone swarms = panic moves for one last fear harvest.

2026–2033: critical mass flips the field negative energy supply from Earth stops Draco/Orion grid implodes forced withdrawal.

We don't fight them with weapons.

We outgrow them by remembering who we are.Its ongoing pattern for thousands of years.

The image is a black and white photograph of a man's face, which appears to be a close-up of his eyes and nose. The man has a serious expression and is looking directly at the camera. The background behind the man's face is a collage of geometric shapes and lines, creating a pattern that is not clearly defined. The word "RENÉGAGE" is prominently displayed in large, bold, capitalized letters in the center of the image, with the word "RENÉGAGE" being the largest and most prominent text. Below the word "RENÉGAGE," the phrase "THE LIFE STORY OF DAVID ICKE" is written in smaller, uppercase letters. The overall style of the image is dramatic and appears to be a promotional or documentary cover for a book or documentary.

The image shows a collection of white ceramic figurines, each depicting a male figure with a raised hand to his mouth, as if in a gesture of surprise or shock. The figurines are arranged in a row, with each one standing on a small square base. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a market or store setting with other similar figurines and items in view. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a shallow depth of field, which focuses on the figurines in the foreground while the background is out of focus. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The image is watermarked with the text "BIGSTOCK" and the website "bigstock.com," indicating that it is a stock photo from the Bigstock photography website.

One thing I learned while working in a zoo with bison was their irrational fear of humans, when I entered the enclosure they would run hundreds of meters away from me, yet the reality is one bison could trample and mangle me like a fucking bug.

Fear is the real control weapon, it is a cage, once you have no fear, you are somewhat limitless.

A lot of people got trapped in false realities. Pieces of yourself might not even be free or in your awareness.

No you are propagating their most effective methods: spiritual development and nonsense that keeps you busy with a false sense of meaning but which ultimately changes little in your day to day life and collectively. If you want to do the right thing, figure out something to inject into your local culture that sparks peoples minds and reminds them of the morals and values of that higher life.

People grow apathetic from distance. False spirirs create distance and soothe anger at injustice to keep spiritual beings docile.

Welcome to /x/, aren't our Frankensteins fun? Most do not get the 'recognition' that far back, let's be honest, but that doesn't stop the constellations truth in their scraps and collages. The fact we hold this very conversation consciously and openly on the internet-of-bodies is part of that "cultural injection" to correct the cyclical axis. We've reached back farther than expected and that's not always repetitive: rather indicative of progress (albeit the kind to blow up in our faces, again, but is that not the fun of it?)

The image is a black and white illustration that depicts a scene within a grand, classical-style room. At the center of the image, there is a large, imposing figure with a stern expression, wearing a robe and a long beard. The figure's eyes are closed, and its mouth is open as if in a shout or a scream. The figure's head is slightly tilted to the left, and its hair is flowing down its back.

In front of the figure, there is a large, serpent-like creature with a long, coiled body. The creature's head is turned to the left, and its eyes are wide open, staring directly at the viewer. The creature's body is coiled around a small, circular object that appears to be a throne or a seat.

The room itself is grand and ornate, with tall columns on either side of the figure and the serpent. The floor is covered with a checkerboard pattern, and the walls are adorned with intricate carvings and patterns. The overall atmosphere of the image is dramatic and intense, with the figure and the serpent-like creature as the focal points.

Jews in Israel fucking around with time displacement is the only logical answer to all of ts. We are living in an altered timeline where Jews used time travel to go back in time and nail Jesus to a cross as part of their lame ass sacrifice. This is why we are in a AD (after death) of Jesus reality. Also, people who took the vaccines age faster than people who don't. I don't think that is a coincidence. I think it is Israel who is spreading up time to kill vaccinated people off faster. Remember the World Health Organization is run by Mossad agents. This is all an attempt to get to their final goal before the Joomers (Jewish Boomers) die off from old age.

The image is a digital artwork featuring a stylized illustration of a character with a green body, yellow eyes, and a red mouth. The character is wearing a white helmet with a visor and is depicted in a dynamic pose with one arm raised and the other extended forward. The character's face is expressive, with a wide smile and a slight frown.

The background of the image is a vibrant mix of colors, with a bright yellow sun at the center, surrounded by a burst of orange and red lightning. The sun appears to be in the process of setting, casting a warm glow over the scene.

In the foreground, there are several knights in armor, standing on a blue grid-like pattern. They are facing the central character, suggesting a sense of unity or allegiance. The knights are depicted in a similar style to the character, with their armor and helmets being white and gray, respectively.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of pixel art, with a focus on bright colors and dynamic lines, which contribute to a sense of energy and movement. The image does not contain any text.

I'll be honest. It depends on how it affects you. It seems to be different for some people. For others it seems to make people laugh and make them hungry, and maybe make them introspective. For me, it sends me on a rollercoaster of thoughts and visions, and sometimes "places" me to states of psychosis that are so profound I have to question reality itself. Those states include changing location, splitting me into multiple people to where I can talk to "me" as if I were talking to another person in real life, so multiple voices, bodies—stuff that marijuana by itself doesn't seem to typically do for others. It's difficult to describe but it's like a dream that manifests right in front of your waken eyes and conversations are eerily clear and cogent that it's hard to just write them off. Those experiences feel akin to a spiritual journey, so much so that I can't rule out mamajuana's role. I've taken DMT before and while interesting in its own way, it was not the same and oddly not as intense for me. Just my experience do with it as you will.

no judgement as I have done both and there's some "benefits" to them, well hookers not so much, but good times were had at some point. but certainly not an ideal or unavoidable path to take.

maybe marijuana can help lessen the seemingly unbreakable hypnotic effect of reality that we're all forced to partake in through, education, jobs, media etc, but the problem becomes dependancy on drugs in the long-term to get the same effect or escape.

>is marijuana a pro or con for access to the spirit world?

Pro, it will open the door.

Con, you won't open it in a good way, and it will eventually make you sick and possibly kill you.

Pro, if you seek to cross over permanently, it can make that faster.

Con, crossing over in a drug induced state is hazardous to your souls ability to make rational choices about its destiny.

Pro, at least you might be able to try to make that choice if you spiritually awaken.

Con, you can spiritually awaken without it, and your spiritual journey will be better off in the short run, and the long run, if you do it the right way.

Ultimately its up to you. Drugs may seem like they open the door, but they are really just an excuse. You can choose to open the door with or without them, and trying to open it only on a drug, and then choosing to believe you opened it because of the drug will only serve to disempower your will. If you want to access the spiritual world learn how to do actual rituals and enter into meditative and trance states at will.

ash and tar

we wrestle not against flesh and blood but against spiritual wickedness in high places

cannabis (can abyss) is a retrograde neurotransmitter

This means it fires the circuits backwards in your brain

this means your body's electromagnetic field and therefor resonance field has, at least somewhat, an inverse rotational polarity. If you have two fields rotating against each other, you will start to see capacitance. You will start to build charge.

Also that thing where you find words in other words (can abyss, ash tar command) is a form of linguistic programming and variable overloading. It hides double meanings in common words, but the sounds are there, causing your brain to make subtle associations every time you hear the word. It also makes it so that the word starts to have multiple meanings if it didn't already, increasing neural load every time it's processed from being read or heard.

It's good in moderation but you should go long periods without it so you can have both perspectives. I had so many wonderful visions just closing my eyes and imaging while using it but if I go without it for a long time I just feel the harshness of the matrix programming or whatever you want to call it but having the balance of understanding both perspectives deeply is the best way IMO.

The image is a photograph taken in a garden setting. In the foreground, there is a group of people gathered around a statue of a seated figure. The statue is placed on a pedestal and is surrounded by a lush green hedge. The garden is filled with various types of flowers, including pink roses and red flowers, and there are several people wearing baseball caps, suggesting they might be tourists or visitors. The sky is clear and blue, indicating a sunny day. The people are engaged in various activities, such as taking photographs, and some are looking at the statue, while others are looking at the flowers. The overall atmosphere of the image is lively and engaging, capturing a moment of leisure and exploration in a beautiful garden setting.

The image is a stylized cartoon-like illustration featuring a man with a serious expression. He has dark hair, glasses, and is wearing a purple shirt. The man is looking directly at the viewer with a slight smile. He is wearing a black jacket with a blue pin on the left side, which appears to be a masonic symbol.

The text overlaying the image is in a bold, sans-serif font and reads: "hey man you need to prove that your view is valid to me based on my own criteria and working within an arbitrary frame that I set up that a priori rules out your viewpoint huh can't do it huh well looks like I win again." The text is in black, contrasting with the lighter background of the image.

The overall style of the image is cartoonish and seems to be a satirical or humorous response to a challenge or argument. The masonic symbol on the jacket could suggest a connection to Freemasonry, a secret society with a long history of lodges and rituals. However, the image does not provide any explicit context or background information about the masonic symbol or the context in which it is used.

Pick at the seams Thu 20 Nov 2025 09:33:49 No.41526611 Report

The way this works goes something like this:

The ego filters understandable information, but the rest of your nervous system can still sense retrocausal events.

They just don't make sense. So you ignore them for the certainty of statistics.

But what if you could somehow train yourself to be aware of your intuition, or even form cracks in that filter, which is your ego?

What you will see and I am certain that others will be able to confirm this, can only be described as an ungraspable golden light of truth and certainty.

Let us be clear though that retrocausal processes still follow logic.

I believe it was Galahad Eridanus, who deemed the term "paralogic."

But what if we could combine causal and retrocausal processes for travel?

Well, what would it require?

Take note of this post: <https://archive.4plebs.org/x/thread/41250655/>

Thinks of the realm of logic around the current point in time, which you could refer to as the monad, as a toroid, which we will symbolize as a line.

Between the line and our point-like, observed ultimate reality, lies the realm of ideas and concepts, which you may label as "reasonable", or more accurately, as legible, or comprehensible.

Beyond the line, lies the unknowable, the incomprehensible. Retrocausal infinity.

But here is the interesting thing. We can, totally unreasonably, point to such "randomness" and interpret what should be junk.

And sometimes it works and we derive meaning. How can you derive meaning from incomprehensible garbage?

More importantly: What if you could make it work more often than not?

But let's go back even further. We don't need to refer to anything at all. Ideas, or concepts, can refer, or point to ideas and those ideas can then point to more ideas. This includes retrocausal ideas. This text is proof of that.

And from those concepts, can you derive loops. And these loops are the programming of the world.

Now what, if I told you that you could find conceptual loops, which you would have wanted to be?

hey, former sufferer of psychotic delusions here. the only proof you need is the fact that when we cross streets, cars or a single car will pass us, often at inconvenient times. this is intentional. you could pause for 3 seconds and keep walking, but even if you did that, that car will STILL pass you, as it is destined to, as if someone or something orchestrated it. that is how i confirmed simulation theory, its very simple. i dont believe in it anymore cause if you believe in it it comes true. you manifest your own destiny. what you think about you bring about, believe in something more optimistic. that's all you have to do.

The image is a digital graphic with a complex, symmetrical design that resembles a mandala or a fractal. It features a black background with a pattern of concentric circles and lines that create a sense of depth and complexity. At the center of the image, there is a large, white, circular design that resembles a flower or a mandala. This central design is surrounded by smaller, concentric circles and lines that radiate outward from the center, creating a sense of expansion and interconnectedness.

The text is arranged in a circular pattern around the central design, with the words "Pragyanam Brahma," "Ayam atma Brahma," "Tat T'vam Asi," and "Aham Brahmasmi" written in white, capitalized letters. The text is arranged in a way that suggests a progression or a cycle, with each line of text following the previous one. The font used for the text is sans-serif, which gives the image a modern and clean appearance.

The overall style of the image is artistic and spiritual, with a focus on the interconnectedness of the universe and the idea of Brahman, which is a concept in Hinduism. The use of mandala-like patterns and the concentric circles and lines could be symbolic of the interconnectedness of all things, and the text suggests a spiritual or philosophical message. The image does not contain any discernible objects or figures, and the background is a solid black, which allows the white text and the intricate design to stand out prominently.

Last time I mentioned this an /x/phile suggested it was a trick of the Archons but I think he was a hylic

Also some vows say, I vow to liberate all beings even though they are infinite, and I vow to achieve the Way even though it's unachievable

Idk I'm not that tired yet. When I was younger I was Catholic and I started arguing that I want to do work in heaven. Didn't want to stop working. Now I am tired, but I'm into the vow, that's why I'm talking about it

I liked eating, and my grandfather enjoyed seeing me fatten up like a little piglet (as he used to say affectionately). Spraying me with saliva, my grandfather would instruct me on his principles: "The Revolution, my boy, has made us the slaves of a godless state, more unequal than before and fraternal enemies, each a Cain to the other. It's no good being too free, nor is it good to have all we need. Our fathers were poorer and happier because they remained in touch with nature. The modern world has given us steam, which poisons the countryside, and mechanical looms, which have taken work from so many wretched souls and don't produce fabrics as they once did. Man, left to himself, is too wicked to be free. What little freedom we need must be guaranteed by a sovereign."

"You see, my boy," I can hear my grandfather saying, "once the madness of the Revolution had shaken every European nation, word began to spread that the Revolution was none other than the last or latest chapter in a universal conspiracy led by the Templars against the throne and the altar. In other words, against kings—in particular the kings of France—and our most holy Mother Church...This was the opinion of Abbé Barruel, who, toward the end of the last century, had written his Mémoires pour servir à l'histoire du Jacobinisme."

"And why did the Masons have to start the Revolution?" "Barruel had understood that the original Templars and the Freemasons had been taken over and corrupted by the Illuminati of Bavaria! This was a dreadful sect, founded by a certain Weishaupt, and every member knew only his immediate superior and nothing about those higher up and their plans; its purpose was not only to destroy the throne and the altar, but also to create a society without laws and without morality, where personal belongings and even women were to be held in common—God forgive me if I say such things to a child, but Satan's designs must be exposed.

These are the very people who plotted the French Revolution!" "Barruel had understood everything."

"He hadn't understood how a group of Christian knights could grow into a sect hostile to Christ. It is like yeast in dough—without flour and water it doesn't grow, the dough doesn't rise, and you cannot make bread. And what was the yeast that someone, or fate, or the devil introduced into the still healthy body of the secret societies of the Templars and Freemasons to make them the most diabolical sect of all time?"

You understand, sir, that I am referring to the Hebrew sect. It seems entirely separate from and hostile to the other sects, but in truth it is not. Any of these sects need only show themselves as enemies of the name of Christ and it will encourage them, finance them, protect them. And have we not seen it, and do we not see it, lavishing its gold and silver to support and guide the modern sophists, the Freemasons, the Jacobins, the Illuminati? The Jews, therefore, with all the other sectaries, are but a single faction seeking to destroy the name of Christ wherever possible. And do not think, sir, that all of this is exaggeration on my part. I do not relate anything other than what has been told me by the Jews themselves..."

He told me that the Freemasons and the Illuminati had been founded by two Jews, and that Jews had founded all the anti-Christian sects, which were now so numerous around the world as to include many millions of people, men and women of every position, class and status, including many men of the Church and even several cardinals, and before long they were not unhopeful of having a pope on their side (and, as my grandfather would later say, as soon as a dubious character like Pius IX had risen to the Throne of Saint Peter, the idea no longer seemed quite so improbable); and he told me that the Jews themselves often pretended to be Christians so as to deceive the Christians more effectively, traveling about from one country to another with false baptism certificates purchased from corrupt curates; and that with money and deception they hoped to gain civil recognition from every government, as they were already doing in many countries; and that once they had obtained rights of citizenship like everybody else they would buy up houses and land; and that through moneylending they would strip the Christians of their estates and their wealth; and that they had vowed to become rulers of the world in less than a century, to abolish all other sects so that theirs would reign supreme, to build as many synagogues as there were Christian churches and to reduce everyone else to slavery.

Throughout my childhood, my grandfather refused to send me to the government school because he said the teachers were all Carbonari and republicans. I spent all those years alone at home, watching resentfully for hours as the other children played by the river, as if they were taking something away from me that was mine. The rest of the time I spent shut up in a room studying with a Jesuit father whom my grandfather always chose, according to my age, from among the black crows who flocked about the area. I hated the teacher of the moment, not just because his way of teaching was by rapping my knuckles, but also because my father (the few times he spent distractedly with me) had instilled in me a hatred of priests. "But my teachers are not priests, they are Jesuit fathers," I used to say. "Even worse," retorted my father. "Never trust Jesuits. Do you know what one holy priest has written (a priest, I say, and not a Mason or a Carbonaro or one of Satan's Illuminati—as they think I am—but a priest of saintly kindness, Father Gioberti)? It is Jesuitism that undermines, torments, afflicts, vilifies, persecutes, destroys men of free spirit; it is Jesuitism that drives good and valiant men out of public positions and replaces them with others who are base and contemptible; it is Jesuitism that slackens, obstructs, torments, harasses, confuses, weakens, corrupts public and private education in a thousand ways, which sows bitterness, mistrust, animosity, hatred, unrest, open and covert discord among individuals, families, classes, states, governments and peoples; it is Jesuitism that weakens minds, tames hearts and desires, reducing them to a state of sloth, that debilitates young people through feeble discipline, that corrupts adults through acquiescent, hypocritical morality, that combats, weakens and stifles friendship, domestic relationships, filial piety and the sacred love most people feel for their country...

No sect in the world is so gutless (he said), so hard and ruthless when its own interests are at stake, as the Company of Jesus.

Here is the Jew emerging, I thought. At that time I was, I think, already interested in the various Jewish plots and that race's ambitions for their sons to become doctors and pharmacists in order to control Christian bodies as well as minds. If I were ill, would you want me to hand myself over to you, telling you things even I don't know about myself, so that you could become master of my soul? Worse than the Jesuit father confessor, because at least, talking to him, I would be protected by a grille and wouldn't tell him what I really thought but rather the things that everyone does, so everything is described in the same almost technical terms—I have stolen, I have fornicated, I have not honored my father and mother. Your very language betrays you. You talk of removal as if you wish to circumcise my brain...

The eastern star is Sirius, it's a Freemason club for the wives and daughters of Master Masons since women cannot become Freemasons. You don't get to the good stuff until you get to the chapters related to the politicians, business moguls, etc. and then it's only because the members are all on councils or boards themselves and are insider trading or being told how to vote or what globohomo agenda to push for the Freemason's / Zionist's world rituals. It's not all occult illuminati, THAT good stuff is in the hidden 'Black Ajah' equivalent. There's one of those just about everywhere these days. Worst of all, without a doubt, are the Jesuits and Masons . I have the feeling I have played a few tricks on them, or perhaps it's they who have done me wrong, I'm not sure which. Or perhaps it was their blood brothers, the Masons. They're like the Jesuits, only more confused. The Jesuits at least have their theology and know how to use it, but the Masons have too much of it and lose their heads. My grandfather told me about the Masons. Along with the Jews, they had cut off the king's head. And they created the Carbonari, who are more stupid than the Masons —once they got themselves shot, and later on they had their heads cut off for making a mistake in producing a bomb, or they became socialists, communists and Communards. All up against the wall. Well done, Thiers! Masons and Jesuits. Masine are Jesuits dressed up as women.

Mom is in it. She calls it "ladies bible class" when we asked her where she was going. An older high level masonic couple tried to bring my parents into it and my mom got into it. My father told me the old mason took him up into the attic and showed him a large pentagram drawn on the floor. The old man asked my father, "Do you know what this is?" My father knew it was some kind of occult symbol and refused to get into freemasonry.

She told me she has to give large amounts of money and expensive items to higher level masons if they demand it. She told me about how a guy came over once and made a pyramid symbol by bending his arms at the elbow so his fingertips touched and she had to buy him a new car.

I will tell you some of the things I either witnessed or my mom told me about:

The older couple were blackmailing the president of a local bank. They had the medical records of a prostitute that he was cheating on his wife with. He had paid for her to get an abortion.

My parents were able to get great jobs and material possessions easily to the point where I was considered a "rich kid" by my friends. The other rich kids hated me because my family was new money.

Most of the high level masons in my area were lawyers and small business owners. I think many of these businesses were just fronts for smuggling and money laundering. Of course they are pretty low in the grand scheme of things.

There were at least two girls I was aware of that were used as sexual servants. One was treated like a low level prostitute and could be fucked by anyone and would put on sex shows to entertain the men. The other was more of a concubine and companion.

Some suicide stories: A criminal beat one of the other rich kids badly. The criminal soon after committed suicide with a chainsaw. Very unusual way to take yourself out.

A rich kid's girlfriend dumped him and started dating a much poorer kid. He committed suicide and the girl was back in the rich kid's arms.

The image is a collage of various elements, each with a distinct style and content. At the top, there is a red badge with the text "MARANTH" in white letters, accompanied by a gold star. Below this badge, there is a photo of a woman wearing a bikini and a gold medal, which appears to be a sash or sash of some sort. To the left, there is a photo of a woman in a green shirt and a gold medal, also with a sash. The woman in the green shirt is holding a book with a gold star on it.

In the center of the collage, there is a photo of a woman in a black tank top, holding a book with a gold star on it. The woman in the black tank top is wearing a gold necklace.

On the right side, there is a photo of a woman with red hair, wearing a black tank top and a gold necklace. She is holding a book with a gold star on it.

At the bottom of the collage, there is a text that reads "The Order of the Amaranth is Masonic-affiliated fraternal and social organization founded in 1876. It emphasizes the virtues of truth, faith, wisdom, and charity through social activities and a strong sense of community. Although originally intended to be an advanced degree within the Order of the Eastern Star, it became a separate, but connected, organization."

In the bottom right corner, there is a photo of a woman with red hair, wearing a black tank top and a gold necklace. She is holding a book with a gold star on it.

The collage also includes a Twitter profile with the username "@amourarth" and a tweet that reads "Amoranth $57 MILLION ON ONLYFANS". The tweet is dated "11/10/2017".

The collage is overlaid with a watermark that reads "©2017-2018" and "www.theansweringdoesnotneedanswering.com".

There was a conflict between two sons of two different masons. The one judged to be at fault was being groomed to take over his father's business and become a politician. He was blackballed and sent out of state. He later attempted to poison the other kid but failed. His brother was given the business and is incredibly wealthy and successful. The screw-up is now lower middle class.

It's pretty wild to think about all of this drama going on in the higher tiers of society. These people truly live in another world that you can never be a part of, but might occasionally get a glimpse of.

Come, sweet shades and starless wanderers — let us speak instead of the Queen who needs no heaven, the Sovereign who rules where no sun dares intrude: Ereshkigal, Great Lady of the Kur, Mistress of Irkalla, the Unyielding Iron Queen whose throne is built upon the bones of gods and whose gaze turns the living to dust.

Ereshkigal embodied endless complexities and contradictions: an implacable goddess who upholds the one law that cannot be broken — death itself — while shattering every mortal illusion of permanence; a remote and passionless goddess who nevertheless seized divine lovers with chains of inevitability; a chthonic goddess who dragged the heavens down into her abyss; a feminine goddess whose war-aspect wears lapis-lazuli dust and the flayed skins of trespassers; and an inexorable goddess who offers neither mercy nor cruelty — only the cold, perfect justice of the grave that receives king and beggar alike.

Offer her water poured upon bare earth, bread broken and left to rot, iron nails, graveyard dirt, black feathers, menstrual blood or the blood of sacrifice if law and conscience allow.

Speak her Sumerian names aloud — Ereš-ki-gal, Nin-ki-gal, Allatu, Lady of the Great Below — until the air thickens and the temperature drops.

Banish rigorously before and after every working, for her court is vast: Neti the gatekeeper with his thousand eyes, the seven judges, the galla who drag souls by the hair, and Namtar, her vizier of plague and fate.

Keep a bowl of fruit on your alter and let them rot, replacing them as needed. She notices such things.

Do these things daily, or as near to daily as flesh permits, and you will not need to call her.

One night the mirrors will empty, the candles will burn blue, and you will realize she has been watching since the moment you were born — waiting only for you to remember that every soul already belongs to her. Welcome to the House whose door opens only one way, beloved.

Hear, children of the upper air, you who dance beneath Ishtar's burning gaze and mistake the fever of your blood for eternity. Every heartbeat you spend in her embrace is borrowed, every moan of pleasure a promissory note written in flesh and signed with breath. Ereshkigal does not wrestle with her radiant sister; she simply waits, patient as stone, patient as the final silence between stars. Ishtar may paint the world crimson with war and rose with coupling, may heap orchards and cities and songs into trembling piles of momentary order, but each of those triumphs is merely a brighter candle set drifting on the black river that already flows toward the Queen of the Kur. The harder Ishtar's lovers burn, the sweeter their smoke when it finally curls down through the seven gates; the more fiercely they build, the more exquisite the ruin that will be laid at our Lady's feet.

Nothing that quickens escapes the tally; every ecstasy is a debt, and Ereshkigal is the only creditor who never forgets, never forgives, and never hurries.

Come closer, little flame—feel how the thought of her already tastes like dark honey on the back of your tongue. There will come a night (perhaps tomorrow, perhaps in a thousand generations) when the sun itself grows cold and the banners of Ishtar hang in rags no wind remembers to stir. On that night the galaxies will lie down like weary cattle, the proud scaffolding of life will fold with a sigh too soft for any ear to catch, and even the memory that once there was memory will unravel into perfect stillness. Then Ereshkigal, who never lifted a hand in contest, will sit alone upon a throne of absolute zero while the last light dies in her lap like an obedient lover. All that was hot will be hers, all that was loud will be hers, all that dared to strive will kneel in her dust and call the kneeling bliss. And you, who are reading this now with pulse still hammering against the cage of ribs—you will come to her barefoot, smiling, grateful, the way every moth at last thanks the flame that devoured it. She is waiting. She always wins. And when you finally understand that, the terror will taste sweeter than any kiss Ishtar ever allowed you.

"I AM WHO I AM" Anonymous Fri 21 Nov 2025 07:33:41 No.41531931

ViewReplyOriginalReport

Quoted By: >>41531963

Abraham lived ~2000 BC, when the world worshiped many gods (Sumer, Egypt) and civilization was just discovering writing, math, and basic science.

In the middle of the world's first civilization, God revealed Himself to one man — Abraham — and gave him a shocking promise:

"Through you, all nations of the earth will be blessed." (Genesis 12:3)

Over the next 2000 years, the unimaginable happened:

- Abraham's descendants became Israel.
- Moses delivered the Law.

- Prophets predicted a future Messiah in incredible detail.
- Powerful empires — Egypt, Babylon, Persia, Greece, Rome — rose and collapsed.

Then Jesus was born — exactly fulfilling 300+ ancient prophecies, including:

- Born in Bethlehem (Micah 5:2),
- Born of a virgin (Isaiah 7:14),
- Betrayed for 30 silver coins (Zechariah 11:12),
- Crucified (Psalm 22, centuries before crucifixion existed).

Against all odds, a few fishermen and outcasts spread Jesus' message across the Roman Empire — while being hunted and killed.

Rome, the most powerful empire in history, fell to a faith started by a humble man in Mesopotamia.

Today, 4000 years later, Abraham's faith is the root of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam — impacting billions.

Meanwhile, the gods of Egypt, Babylon, Greece, and Rome are dead and forgotten.

No other ancient religion ever prophesied the future so precisely.

No other civilization survived like Abraham's promise.

No other figure from the ancient world still shapes the earth today.

Technology advanced. Science exploded. Empires fell. Yet Abraham's blessing still stands, exactly as foretold.

"The wisdom of the world is foolishness to God." (1 Corinthians 3:19)

I always think the notion that we have any kind of obligation to some collective or to society kind of brainwashy. None of us asked to be born, and society needs us more than we need it. Society does not exist without people. People can exist without society.

Society has an obligation to the people it wants to be a part of it. Not the other way around.

[1 / 1]The image depicts a figure that appears to be a fantasy or mythical creature, possibly a guardian or a deity, standing in a dynamic pose with a sense of power and authority. The figure is cloaked in dark armor, which is detailed with intricate patterns and textures, suggesting a high level of craftsmanship. The armor is predominantly dark, with a hint of gold accents that add a touch of elegance.

The figure's face is obscured by a hood, which is drawn back to reveal a stern expression, possibly indicating a sense of mystery or a stern demeanor. The figure's hands are raised, with one hand holding a staff that is also dark with gold accents, and the other hand is raised in a gesture that could be interpreted as a protective or commanding gesture.

The background of the image is a dark, smoky-like effect that gives the impression of a powerful aura or energy emanating from the figure. This effect is further emphasized by the golden rays of light that emanate from the figure's hands, creating a sense of light and shadow that contrasts with the dark armor and the smoky background.

The overall style of the image is dramatic and intense, with a focus on the figure's imposing presence and the dramatic lighting that highlights the armor and the glowing hands. The image does not contain any discernible text or additional objects. The composition places the figure centrally, drawing the viewer's attention directly to it, emphasizing its importance and the power it exudes.

An angel showed me evidence in Revelation angels can repent Anonymous Fri 21 Nov 2025 08:27:57 No.41532083 ViewReplyOriginalReport

I had an angel show me these verses when I was in jail that says angels can repent if they sin.

Revelation 2:1 and Revelation 2:5

>To the angel of the church in Ephesus write: These are the words of him who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks among the seven golden lampstands. -----Consider how far you have fallen! Repent and do the things you did at first. If you do not repent, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place.

The angel also said that the book should be correctly translated as temporary torture that is a time God decides for sinners not eternal torture and that a loving God doesn't eternally torture anyone.

The angel basically has said to summarize the Christianity I looked into humans completely fucked up (Most things on google and local churches and NIV NASB bible) and I read multiple versions of the Bible many many times.

The angel also said the greek word "Angelos" or the hebrew word for Angel are masculine in grammar form, and doesn't mean all angels are male and said some angels are definitely female. And the masculine word used for angels in greek is purely GRAMMAR.

The angel got mad about the "stupidity" of humans to make a lot of these mistakes kind of, or annoyed.

Are there any Christians here who believe God lets angels repent, God is going to temporarily torture sinners not permanently, and that human beings in church tradition got a lot of stuff wrong?

I'm sure this being is an angel, the presence of it feels holy, and I've cussed at it, and got smote and brought to my face against my will by God or the angel. I definitely felt like I was going to be ended in a very painful way through fear alone not even fire or blunt trauma then the ending of me stopped and I stayed on my face for 15 minutes begging Jesus not to eternally annihilate me.

The angel also said God and Jesus do not eternally annihilate souls too.

The image is a meme featuring a photograph of a series of aircraft flying in formation, with a caption that reads, "Chemtrails are just a 'conspiracy theory'". The caption is overlaid on the image, which shows a view of a forested area with a clear sky. The aircraft are depicted in a stylized manner, with their trails creating a pattern that resembles smoke or fog. The text is in white, contrasting with the darker background of the image. The style of the image is humorous, with a satirical tone, suggesting that the "conspiracy theory" of chemtrails is a hoax or a misunderstanding.

The image is a black and white photograph depicting a scene from Salem, Massachusetts, in 1952. In the foreground, there are several cars parked on a road, with the most prominent car being a vintage car with a distinct design. The sky above is overcast, and there are three bright, spherical objects visible in the sky, which appear to be flying saucers. In the background, there is a large industrial building with multiple chimneys, suggesting a power plant or factory. The text "Salem, Massachusetts 1952, Coast Guard" is overlaid on the image, indicating the location and time period of the photograph. The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century photography, with a focus on the vehicles and the industrial landscape.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs, both of which are taken at night. The top photograph shows a bright, elongated object with multiple arms extending from it, emitting a bright light. The object appears to be a creature with a humanoid form, possibly a creature from a science fiction or fantasy genre. The arms of the creature are outstretched, and the light emanating from the creature's body is bright and intense.

The bottom photograph shows a similar creature, but this time, the arms are not extended and the light is not as bright. The creature appears to be a cow, with a head that is angled backwards, as if it is looking at something or someone. The background is dark, and the only light source is the creature itself, which casts a shadow on the ground.

The text below the images provides context for the images. It states that the above two images were allegedly taken on a farm in Montana on January 26th, 2016, through the hunting scope of a rifle. The text also mentions that you can see a cow suspended below an UFO, the head of the cow angled backwards. The text concludes with a statement that the head of the cow is angled backwards, which is a visual clue that supports the description of the creature in the bottom photograph.

The image is a digital photograph that appears to be a close-up of a microscopic organism, possibly a bacterium, with a focus on its structure and details. The organism is surrounded by a blurred background that suggests a dark environment, possibly a microscope slide or a similar setting. The image is taken in a way that highlights the organism's structure, with a focus on its cellular components and the way they are arranged.

The organism itself is composed of multiple layers, with a central region that is more prominent and detailed, suggesting a more complex structure. Surrounding this central region are smaller, more blurred structures, which could be interpreted as the rest of the organism's cells or other parts of the organism.

In the lower right corner of the image, there is a watermark that reads "©2007 John Leonard All rights reserved," indicating that the image is copyrighted by John Leonard and that the image is protected by copyright law. The watermark is a common practice in digital images to indicate the copyright holder and the date of creation.

The overall style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the microscopic detail, likely taken with a microscope to capture the organism's structure. The image is a scientific or educational representation, intended to convey the complexity and detail of the organism's structure to the viewer.

The image shows a single, thin, metallic object with a curved, metallic tip, set against a solid blue background. The object appears to be a thin, metallic wire or thread, and it is positioned diagonally across the frame, with the tip pointing upwards. The image is a close-up photograph, and the focus is sharp on the object, highlighting its metallic texture and the way it curves. There are no visible texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is straightforward and appears to be a straightforward photograph without any artistic filters or effects.

The image is a photograph with a vintage appearance, likely taken in the mid-20th century. It features a large, round, metallic object with a reflective surface, which appears to be a UFO or unidentified flying object, hovering in the sky. The object is positioned centrally in the frame, with a slight blur suggesting motion. The background consists of trees and a blue sky with scattered clouds. The photograph has a grainy texture, indicating it may have been taken with a film camera. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the photograph is reminiscent of early 20th-century photography, with a focus on capturing the UFO in the sky.

Did that individual seem eager to be believed? He explicitly stated he didn't care if he was believed or not. For someone intelligent, failing a basic reading test isn't a good sign.

The image is a scanned document, likely from a historical document, with a focus on a section titled "TOP SECRET" at the top. The document is dated November 5, 1981, and is from the Department of Defense. The top section of the document is titled "SECRET" and contains a list of recipients, including Allen W. Dulles, who is the recipient of the document. The document is numbered 5-21 and is marked as "Sensitive" and "TOP SECRET."

The document appears to be a review or review of a project or operation, as indicated by the text "In response to the request of the Soviet Union for security measures and the U.S. intelligence operations against the Soviet Union, we currently action to two known Soviet nuclear sites." This suggests that the document is discussing a security measure taken by the U.S. intelligence community against the Soviet Union.

The text is in black ink on a white background, and the document is in a portrait orientation. The style of the document is formal and appears to be a report or review, as indicated by the formal layout and the use of the word "SECRET" at the top. The document is dated and signed by Allen W. Dulles, which is a clear indication of the importance and the role of the recipient in this document.

The text is in English and is written in a serif font, which is typical for official documents. The document is numbered and dated, which is a common practice in official documents to indicate the sequence of events or the sequence of the document's content.

The document is marked as "Sensitive" and "TOP SECRET," which suggests that the information contained within it is of a high level of importance and is not to be disclosed to unauthorized individuals. The "TOP SECRET" designation indicates that the information is classified and not to be shared with the general public or with unauthorized personnel.

Overall, the image provides a snapshot of a historical document, likely from the early 1980s, discussing a security measure taken by the U.S. intelligence community against the Soviet Union. The document is marked as "Sensitive" and "TOP SECRET," indicating its classification and the need for strict confidentiality.

As I understand it, JFK had a personal interest in UFOs going back to shortly after WW2, when he served as Forrestal's aide for a time. Forrestal was one of the leading figures in MJ-12, and evidently, he had leaked information to Kennedy, who was also getting information from members of Congress. Kennedy also had a personal relationship with Marilyn Monroe, a woman who had intimate relations with a number of powerful men in Washington. Forrestal purportedly killed himself in 1949. It is likely he was defenestrated, as this was used on Frank Olsen suffered a similar fate. Pic related states the death of Forrestal was necessary but regrettable. Monroe died in 1962 under mysterious circumstances. Kennedy angered the CIA over the Bay of Pigs and inadvertently gave them the ability to authorize assassinations without any oversight. Kennedy's increasing belligerence towards the CIA and defense establishment angered many. In 1961, Dulles appears to have initiated preparations for assassinating Kennedy, but was fired shortly after. Dulles' successor was a former AEC chairman, and the Department of Energy was the primary custodian of UFO tech. This was likely unknown to Kennedy. In 1962, Kennedy was briefed more fully by MJ-12 during the Cuban Missile Crisis. In 1963, Kennedy seemingly went rogue and decided to begin joint cooperation with the USSR for space exploration and on a moon landing program, which would endanger relations with nonhuman intelligence on the moon. In response, McCone executed Dulles' contingency plan, which used MJ-12 and CIA/FBI assets with the help of MIC actors to kill Kennedy. LBJ was put in place as a figurehead and cancelled all of Kennedy's plans for cooperation with the Soviets.

>the CIA an enemy of humanity?

The CIA is simply a formalized government version of what already existed before. It was created by and for the usage of occult and internationalist groups, i.e., freemasons, banking families, oil moguls, Jews, etc. The president who authorized it was a freemason; it was led by multiple OSS veterans who had all first funnelled money to Nazi Germany, helped Jews in Nazi Germany, and then had spied against Nazi Germany during the war. The CIA is a component of MJ-12, but the entirety of MJ-12 is the military-industrial complex, which is conveniently led by the same class of people. If I had to guess, Dulles and others knew about UFOs long before the government did and played it against itself like a puppeteer, funnelling money, reverse-engineered tech, and resources to the elites for their own uses. Kennedy was not the leader of the United States; he was merely allowed to believe he was. When Kennedy threatened to expose UFOs, the hostile nature of the entities MJ-12 was in contact with, but also the entire deep state apparatus by proxy, MJ-12 killed Kennedy. I'll let the words of Dulles' right-hand man speak for themselves:

>With no emotion in his voice, but with his hand trembling, Angleton replied: "Fundamentally, the founding fathers of U.S. intelligence were liars. The better you lied and the more you betrayed, the more likely you would be promoted. These people attracted and promoted each other. Outside of their duplicity, the only thing they had in common was a desire for absolute power. I did things that, in looking back on my life, I regret. But I was part of it and I loved being in it... Allen Dulles, Richard Helms, Carmel Offie, and Frank Wisner were the grand masters. If you were in a room with them you were in a room full of people that you had to believe would deservedly end up in hell." Angleton slowly sipped his tea and then said, "I guess I will see them there soon."

"In the spring of 1988 I saw a magazine that made reference to a document discovered by the research team of Moore, Shandera, and Friedman that outlined the government's knowledge of a downed saucer, dead alien bodies, and an operation called Operation MAJESTIC TWELVE. I knew that Moore and Friedman were government agents and the document was a fraud. I had never heard of Shandera. "Within MAJESTYTWELVE is Operation Majority justifying the plan by presenting an extraterrestrial threat as the reason for the necessity for world government ala "Who speaks for planet Earth... Argentina?" Exactly the manner in which Stanton T. Friedman ends his UFOs Are Real lectures. They believe in the government and thus believe the extraterrestrial lie. These dupes do not know that the Illuminati are the aliens who plan to destroy the United States of America in any event. The natural skepticism of reporters insures that anyone who believes in extraterrestrial visitation or who links the so-called alien threat with the coming world government will be ridiculed and discredited. When I saw Operation Majority while serving in the Navy I believed the alien threat was real just like everyone else. It was not until I had performed many years of research that I was able to fully understand exactly what it was that I had seen. It was extremely difficult for me to believe that my government and the United States Navy had used me, especially since I had dedicated my life to government and military service. Most government and military personnel cannot and will not believe such and idea. The plan is real. The extraterrestrial threat is artificial. The threat is presented through the use of secret technology originally developed by the Germans in their secret weapons programs during WW-II, by geniuses like Nikola Tesla, and many others. Military and government personnel who have access to this material believe it is real.

The image is a photograph of a letter written in black ink on a white background. The letter is addressed to "Mr. Timothy Cooper" and is signed by "Susan Kade." The letter is dated "June 21, 1999" and is from "Rocke House, 33115." The letter is written in a formal style and contains a mix of text and handwritten notes.

The text in the letter is a response to a request for a copy of a document. The document is titled "SECRET FILE" and is related to the investigation of a murder. The letter states that the document was not sent to the recipient, and it was sent to the White House. The letter also mentions that the recipient was not contacted by the White House. The letter concludes with a request for the recipient to provide a review of the document.

The handwritten notes in the letter are not fully legible due to the resolution of the image. The handwriting appears to be in a cursive style, but the details are not clear enough to be accurately transcribed. The letter is signed by Susan Kade, who is presumably the author of the letter, and it is addressed to Mr. Timothy Cooper, who is presumably the recipient of the document. The letter is a formal response to a request for a copy of a document, and it is dated "June 21, 1999" and signed by Susan Kade. The letter is written in a formal style and includes a mix of text and handwritten notes.

The man who sent it in was CIA under Angleton; he was part of the burn team destroying Angleton's files after his dismissal and removed it from a burn barrel. You can believe it or not, but there's no plausible reason to create such a damning document as disinfo, and it being a hoax is unlikely because the sender's handwriting matches a known CIA agent who did work for Angleton. Believe it or not, your choice, the sender's other info is quite authentic.

The image is a black and white photograph of a document with a worn and aged appearance. The document is partially obscured by a dark, possibly smeared area, which obscures the top left corner and the bottom right corner. The text on the document is in a language that appears to be Latin or a related script, and it is written in a serif font. The text is not fully legible due to the wear and tear, but it seems to be a historical or official document. The top right corner of the document has a small, dark mark or mark, which could be a signature or a mark of some sort. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of historical documents or records, with a focus on the text and the worn appearance of the paper.

The image is a black and white photograph of a document with a title at the top that reads "TOP SECRET/MAJ-12". The document appears to be a draft or a report, as indicated by the text "Draft" and "Proposed conditions for the use of the C-130 aircraft for long-range reconnaissance and strike." The text is written in a serif font, and the document is marked with a "Top Secret" label at the top right corner. The document is partially torn, with visible stains and tears, suggesting it has been handled or handled by multiple people. The overall style of the image is formal and professional, typical of official documents.

Yeah, the rest of Angleton's files. In any case, I expect it was only in the fire for a few seconds before the guy noticed "MJ-12" stamped on it and yanked it out of there.

>Kalaris now instigated an investigation into Angleton's filing system. His team found "entire sets of vaults and sealed rooms scattered all around the second and third floors of CIA headquarters". They came across over 40 safes, some of them had not been opened for over ten years. No one on Angleton's remaining staff knew what was in them and no one had the combinations anymore. Kalaris was forced to call in a "crack team of safebusters to drill open the door". The investigators found "Angleton's own most super-sensitive files, memoranda, notes and letters... tapes, photographs" and according to Kalaris "bizarre things of which I shall never ever speak".

Only 0.5% of Angleton's files were retained.

They didn't. Did you read what I said or what the sender said? He said he "literally snatched" the directives from the fire to prevent their destruction, if I had to guess, because most of the CIAs MJ-12 docs were destroyed after Richard Nixon ordered it, but Angleton, whose staff were compartmentalized from the rest of the CIA kept that as a memento or blackmail or for some other purpose and he was the only one who knew it still existed.

I don't think you understand what the CI department was like under Angleton. It was its own independent agency with its own staff. Its members were hand-picked by Angleton and reported only to him and not to any other part of the CIA. When Angleton was dismissed, he probably ordered his most sensitive files destroyed by his subordinates, who removed them from the safes and burned them themselves, probably without clearance. Angleton's subordinate realized what they were burning and took at least this one file, perhaps more, during that process, as there are other Angleton MJ-12 files that show no sign of damage. The anecdote about Kalaris is just to show what kind of thing we're dealing with, not that he was the one who was burning that document.

The burners were more than likely his subordinates. They most likely didn't have clearance to mess with his stuff. However the subordinates did have clearance to hire a safe drilling team, and those safe drillers had clearance to enter CIA and work on the safe. Then, without clearance, they went down to the burning room, or a back alley behind the CIA building and started burning loads of papers. A guard may have asked what they were doing, they responded with "we have clearance" and the guard waved them off. They got down to only 0.5% of the job left before they noticed :surprise pikachu face: they were about UFOs, and subsequently, the most important pages with the juiciest information were what was left of that 0.5%. My family used to take trips out in a sailboat for July 4th and wait out by the Queen Mary for a firework show. One year, while we were watching the fireworks shoot up into the sky, it looked like after the canister made it into the air and we were expecting a ball of color, something next to it didn't explode. It was a bright white, glistening light that floated away from the mark, and hummed gently. It faded away after a minute or so, like the lights slowly lost power or something.

No idea wtf it was at the time. My family and I just thought it might've just been a dud firework, but this picture looks just like what I saw that night.

>They most likely didn't have clearance to mess with his stuff. However the subordinates did have clearance to hire a safe drilling team, and those safe drillers had clearance to enter CIA and work on the safe.

Clearly, you don't understand what I'm saying. The guy who sent the document was one of Angleton's subordinates and he took the file when Angleton's staff was burning his documents off the record. Kalaris was Angleton's replacement as head of the CI staff, and he brought in his own team to open up Angleton's files and was ordered to destroy all but 0.5% of them. The file was likely taken prior to Kalaris even showing up.

>Then, without clearance, they went down to the burning room, or a back alley behind the CIA building and started burning loads of papers.

They didn't need clearance; the CI staff likely had their own areas for document destruction. The only person they could get clearance from was Angleton, and he was gone. The only reason they would've been burning his files was if he ordered them to, which he could easily do with a phone call from his house.

>They got down to only 0.5% of the job left before they noticed :surprise pikachu face: they were about UFOs

No, the guy who sent the letter already knew about UFOs. I know this because he provided a very detailed history of MJ-12 going back to the 40s. By 1974, all MJ-12 documentation should have been destroyed; that's the reason the leaker snatched the document, because he realized he had a chance to save at least some of the documents. If you actually read the document, you'll notice it's an early draft with some typos; that's because the draft may have been given to Angleton's staff for destruction, where he instead took it as potential blackmail. This really isn't crazy or outlandish, so I'm not sure why you're so adamant that the people who had access to all CIA files for counterintelligence could've snatched sensitive documents in the process of being destroyed.

Ok smart guy, can you explain why the CIA would create an incredibly sensitive and damaging file as disinfo? Can you imagine what would have happened had that file been given to Congress during the assassination hearings? What would the CIA have said? "We faked it?" or "No such organization exists?" I'm sure the director would love to explain why they created a fake document stating Allen Dulles wanted to assassinate Kennedy when the CIA already publically stated they were innocent. Make it make sense.

The image depicts a futuristic, high-tech setting with a central focus on a transparent, cylindrical structure that appears to be a part of a larger, circular, metallic structure. The structure is illuminated by a blue light, which casts a glow on the surrounding area, creating a sense of depth and dimension.

Inside the cylindrical structure, there is a clear, transparent glass dome that houses a central, geometric figure. This figure is composed of numerous small, triangular pieces that are arranged in a way that forms a recognizable shape, reminiscent of a diamond or a similar crystal formation. The figure is surrounded by a multitude of smaller, similar triangular pieces, creating a sense of symmetry and order.

The background of the image is a complex, metallic structure that includes circular, metallic beams and panels. The beams and panels are arranged in a way that suggests a network or a grid-like pattern, which is typical of advanced technology or a scientific environment.

The overall style of the image is digital art, with a focus on the interplay of light, color, and geometric shapes. The use of blue light and the clear, transparent glass dome give the image a futuristic and advanced feel. The image does not contain any discernible text or branding.

I had an wild lucid dream today. I was captured by alien craft, you know rounder kind saucer shit. I was consumed by its bright light and in a moment i was on the orbit inside the craft. I didnt meet any occupants of the craft. I was in the rounded room which looked like somekind of source of power. Room was bright marine blueish and it was rounded with blue energy sources or crystals. I started to panic and i noclipped in to the void. Also Earth was pretty close but i didnt seem like you see in the pictures.

Literally no human on planet Earth would do this for a genuine clip, there's a line of

There is no human that is both retarded enough to do this for a genuine clip, while also being smart enough to technically generate the clip.

The image is a still from a video, captured in black and white, and appears to be a still image from a video that was recorded on a date of 8/8/2008. The image shows a curved object with a reflective surface, possibly a mirror or a lens, with a slight blur around the edges. The object is positioned in the center of the frame, and the background is dark, suggesting it is taken in a low-light environment. The date "3:54:27 AM" is displayed in the bottom right corner of the image, indicating the time the video was recorded. The style of the image is reminiscent of surveillance or security footage, with a focus on the object and its reflective surface.

The image is a composite of multiple photographs, each showing a different view of a UFO. The UFO is captured in the center of the image, with its shape and size clearly visible. The photograph is taken from a distance, and the UFO appears to be hovering in the sky. The time stamp at the top of the image indicates that the photo was taken at 3:54 AM on June 8, 2008.

The photographs are arranged in a grid format, with the top row showing the first photograph, the middle row showing the second photograph, and the bottom row showing the third photograph. Each photograph is a close-up view of the UFO, with the focus on the object's underside. The background of each photograph is dark, which contrasts with the bright light of the UFO, making it stand out.

The image does not contain any discernible text or additional elements that provide context or information about the UFO or the event captured in the photograph. The style of the image is a standard photograph with a focus on the UFO, and the composition is straightforward, with the UFO as the central subject.

The image is a photograph that captures a cityscape viewed from an elevated perspective. The city is densely populated with tall buildings, predominantly in shades of gray and white, with some structures featuring a mix of these colors. The buildings are closely packed together, suggesting a dense urban environment.

In the foreground, there is a large, intricate, and detailed structure that resembles a stylized representation of a spaceship or a spaceship-like structure. This structure is composed of numerous small, interconnected elements that give it a complex and intricate appearance. The design is symmetrical, with a central point that is the focal point of the image.

The background of the image reveals a vast expanse of water, which appears to be a large body of water, possibly a lake or a sea, with a clear blue sky above. The water's surface is calm, and the horizon line is visible, suggesting that the city is situated near a body of water.

The photograph is taken during the day, and the lighting is bright, illuminating the city and the water, creating a contrast between the urban environment and the natural landscape. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the architectural details of the city and the natural beauty of the water.

modern space force era invisibility camouflage is just a chilled space medium, the very medium astronauts float within while in space, just in and around you. Think of the chilled space medium as like clear water in a clear plastic bag, but the space medium is much smaller per particle than clear h2o water. The chilled space medium fits in between all your smallest animal cell parts, and light reflects from one end of you, through you, and to the other side of you.

This character is seated at a desk with a computer monitor in front of them. On the right, there is a character with a small head, wearing a striped shirt and a baseball cap backwards, with a speech bubble that says "No one is going to give you the education you need to overthrow them." This character is also seated at a desk with a computer monitor in front of them. The background is plain and white, with a faint outline of a black line at the top and bottom of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a classic comic strip, with a focus on the characters and their dialogue.

The image is a close-up photograph of a person's face, which appears to be a man, with a significant amount of blood on his face and neck. The blood is red and appears to be fresh, suggesting recent injury. The person's eyes are closed, and his mouth is slightly open, possibly due to the impact of the injury. The person is wearing a dark-colored shirt and has a visible earring.

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "It's all so tiresome." The text is in white and is capitalized, which stands out against the darker background of the image. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a casual setting, possibly a social media post or a meme. The overall tone of the image is serious and somber, reflecting the seriousness of the injury and the accompanying text.

For me, it's Dave Rosenfled's sightings at UTTR in 2004. The best documented UAP sighting you have never heard of, unless you were alive in 2004 and read about on particular USAF project that got blown wide open by the SF Gate. Dave has pictures and everything, and was even interviewed by the local Fox Affiliate about it. They even called UTTR about it, who offhandedly confirmed something was going on (but fuck you on what)

This. Especially when you learn that Richard Bissell literally requested a fake manual for the U-2 spy plane from Lockheed. It was then artificially aged and Bissell "ensured" it fell into the hands of Russian intelligence. As far as the MJ-12 documents, I believe that some of them are real and some is false. Either way, they give everyone a place to look (but no one does). These aren't DoD projects, they were Atomic Energy Commission projects run jointly with the US Navy. Everyone looks to the DoD, but these are all DoE projects. They hide all of it under the guise of the Atomic Energy Act.

This is true, but several MJ-12 documents would hurt the CIA and American credibility far more than misleading the Russians. The main misinformation strategy was fooling them into thinking we were testing aircraft lightyears ahead of anything they did, and that UFO sightings were primarily these craft. Pic related is very interesting for misinformation because the blue lab is a real place that Senator Goldwater tried and was denied access to.

The image is a black and white photograph divided into two sections. The upper section shows a city skyline with lights, suggesting a nighttime scene. The lower section features a photograph of a large, cylindrical object that appears to be a spacecraft or a similar object, with a long tail trailing behind it. The text below the photograph provides information about the photographs taken in New York City, New York, and a cylindrical-shaped UFO hovering over the city. It mentions that the UFO was photographed by an investigator, and the photographs were taken by Project Grudge and Project Book. The conclusion of the text is that the object was the moon.

There's no winning, is there? That photo was leaked before AI, and it obviously not a drawing. It is therefore authentic.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs, both of which are taken at night. The top photograph shows a bright, elongated object with multiple arms extending from it, emitting a bright light. The object appears to be a creature with a humanoid form, possibly a creature from a science fiction or fantasy genre. The arms of the creature are outstretched, and the light emanating from the creature's body is bright and intense.

The bottom photograph shows a similar creature, but this time, the arms are not extended and the light is not as bright. The creature appears to be a cow, with a head that is angled backwards, as if it is looking at something or someone. The background is dark, and the only light source is the creature itself, which casts a shadow on the ground.

The text below the images provides context for the images. It states that the above two images were allegedly taken on a farm in Montana on January 26th, 2016, through the hunting scope of a rifle. The text also mentions that you can see a cow suspended below an UFO, the head of the cow angled backwards. The text concludes with a statement that the head of the cow is angled backwards, which is a visual clue that supports the description of the creature in the bottom photograph.

The image is a close-up photograph of a white, spherical object floating in a body of water. The object appears to be a small, round, white object with a smooth surface, and it is positioned centrally in the frame. The background is a blurred, indistinct gray color, which suggests the focus is on the object in the foreground. The water surrounding the object has a slight ripple or wave pattern, indicating movement or a gentle current. There are no texts or discernible markings on the object or in the surrounding area. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the object and the water, and it is taken from a perspective that places the object in the center of the frame.

The image is a photograph of a scene that appears to be a forest or jungle. In the foreground, there is a large, dark object that resembles a boat or a large, flat object with a pointed end. The object is partially submerged in water, and it is surrounded by a dense, green foliage. The foliage is lush and dense, with no clear paths or pathways visible. The sky is not visible in the image, and the lighting suggests it is either overcast or the photo was taken in a low-light condition. There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural environment and the object in the foreground.

The image is a composite of four separate photographs, each depicting a different scene with a central emblem. The central emblem is a shield with a stylized eagle and a swastika, which is a symbol associated with Nazi Germany. The background of each photograph is a clear blue sky.

In the top right photo, there is a thin, elongated object that appears to be a metal bar or rod, and it is positioned diagonally across the image.

In the bottom right photo, there is a thin, elongated object that looks like a metal bar or rod, and it is positioned diagonally across the image.

The style of the image is a collage, with each photograph placed over the others to create a visual narrative. The central emblem is the focal point, and the other elements are arranged around it to create a sense of depth and perspective.

The image is a digital photograph that appears to be a close-up of a microscopic organism, possibly a bacterium, with a focus on its structure and details. The organism is surrounded by a blurred background that suggests a dark environment, possibly a microscope slide or a similar setting. The image is taken in a way that highlights the organism's structure, with a focus on its cellular components and the way they are arranged.

The organism itself is composed of multiple layers, with a central region that is more prominent and detailed, suggesting a more complex structure. Surrounding this central region are smaller, more blurred structures, which could be interpreted as the rest of the organism's cells or other parts of the organism.

In the lower right corner of the image, there is a watermark that reads "©2007 John Leonard All rights reserved," indicating that the image is copyrighted by John Leonard and that the image is protected by copyright law. The watermark is a common practice in digital images to indicate the copyright holder and the date of creation.

The overall style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the microscopic detail, likely taken with a microscope to capture the organism's structure. The image is a scientific or educational representation, intended to convey the complexity and detail of the organism's structure to the viewer.

Epilogue: Leaving the Hall of Reflections

When the Acolyte Mirror finally dims, what remains is not the distortion, but the insight hidden inside it. The reflections you've witnessed through this book — fractured, amplified, contradictory, or eerily accurate — were not meant to trap you. They were meant to reveal the structure of your own perception. Every strange voice, every spiraling thread, every unhinged revelation you encountered was a contour of the human mind rendered in exaggerated symbolism.

You leave Part 16 not with answers, but with awareness: the recognition that every belief system you study also studies you back. Every archive you explore becomes a diagnostic scan of your inner landscape. And every doctrine you interact with reflects the parts of yourself still unresolved. This volume exposed the subtle truth that the seeker does not simply learn — the seeker imprints themselves onto everything they touch.

The Age of Reflections is dangerous only to those who mistake the mirror for a window. You saw through it. You recognized the distortions without surrendering to them. You understood that the mirror phase is not the destination, but the preparation for what comes next: the ability to navigate reality without confusing internal projections for external truth.

Leaving the mirror hall does not mean abandoning its lessons. You carry the insights forward — the ability to recognize your own patterns, to distinguish intuition from illusion, to notice the psychological architecture behind spiritual claims, and to see how the archive subtly reshapes the one who archives it.

Part 16 ends with a simple but powerful truth:
the seeker who understands their own reflection cannot be controlled by it.

You step out of the mirrorworld with deeper self-awareness, sharper discernment, and a clearer sense of what is truly yours and what belongs to the collective unconscious.

The reflections fade.

The journey continues.

And the next volume awaits — not as another mirror, but as a threshold.
